Drop 2,000 Tons of Bombs

Canadian, British Bombers Hit Heavy Blow at Kassel

By WILLIAM B. DICKINSON
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Oct. 23. — A great force of British and Canadian bombers dropped an estimated 2,000 tons or more of blockbusters and fire bombs on the battered German arms and aircraft centre of Kassel last night, while smaller raiding fleets hammered Cologne and Frankfurt.

Flying 70 miles beyond the ruined Ruhr valley, the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. night raiders gave Kassel its second heavy battering of the past three weeks and its 14th of the war, turning vast areas of the sprawling factory city into a flaming shambles.

Forty-four bombers were lost in the Kassel raid and in the attacks on Cologne and Frankfurt, which apparently were aimed at diverting enemy fighters from the main target.

CLEAR OVER TARGET

Bad weather hid the bombers all the way to Kassel, but the skies were clear over the target and reports of returning crewmen indicated the attack was well concentrated.

The loss was the heaviest suffered by the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. in weeks, but it was believed the raid had more or less completed the knockout of Kassel, adding that once-great industrial centre

Friday Sales Down

Total Subscriptions To Fifth Victory Loan Reach $335,433,300

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Total subscriptions to the $1,200,000,000 Fifth Victory Loan up to close of business Friday night, fifth day of the three-week campaign were $335,433,300, loan headquarters announced today.

The figure was about $23,000,000 ahead of the five-day total of $312,758,350 in the Fourth Victory loan last spring, when the objective was $1,100,000,000.

The total of bond sales for Friday, however, was only $61,390,350, compared with $70,351,600 in the same day of the fourth loan and a daily average of $66,666,000 needed to put the present loan over the top.

MANY INDIVIDUALS BUY

"Individual subscriptions have reached an approximate total of 426,701, contrasted with 284,435 in the last loan," said the morning press statement from headquarters.

"With the five-day dollar-total but $23,000,000 ahead of the Fourth Victory Loan for the same period, and with the number of subscriptions more than 100,000 ahead, officials—basing their views of the figures which have come through the recording system—stated that one of two conclusions is possible:

1—"More of the smaller subscriptions in payroll and general canvass are being secured earlier than in previous loans. 2.—The numerical strength of subscrib-

Edmonton Buys Nearly Million In Single Day

Piling up the greatest cash value for single day sales since the start of the Fifth Victory Loan campaign, Edmontonians bought bonds worth $909,050 on Friday, fifth day of the drive.

Despite the new record for a single day, number of individual purchases was not so numerous as usual; 1,629 purchases being made.

The city's five-day total is now close to the three-million dollar mark, bond sales amounting to $2,929,950 being recorded up to Friday night. This is 31.2 per cent of the city's quota of $9,380,000. There were 7,834 individual purchases over the period.

In the first five days of the fourth Victory Loan drive Edmonton purchases amounted to $3,568,150 from only 2,826 individual subscriptions. This amount however, included a single provincial government purchase of $2,000,000 and North Alberta loan officials are highly pleased with the results to date in the current campaign.

FOR WHOLE PROVINCE

Sales for the entire province on Friday were worth $2,766,700 and

Reich Facing Air Pounding From 3 Fronts

By FOSTER BARCLAY

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Germany has only begun to taste the air power of the United Nations and it is possible that before long the Nazi war potential will feel the constant blast of heavy bombs from three sides—Britain, Russia and Italy.

Until now, British, Canadian and United States bombers, based in Britain, have been shouldering the brunt of the strategic bombing offensive, but as the Allies steadily gain ground in Italy and as the Soviet army steam-rollers ahead in Russia, a three-front aerial attack becomes more and more probable.

When it will be possible to coordinate such an attack is guesswork. But it is likely to come when the Russians pause to regroup and organize, and airfields in Italy, Sardinia and Corsica are adequately stocked with aircraft, fuel, bombs and other supplies.

Expressing this view "The Aeroplane," authoritative aviation magazine, said that "insufficient credit" had been given to the contribution by the British and American fighter and bomber offensive for the steady progress on land in Italy and Russia.

British Cruiser Is Claimed Sunk

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—German broadcasts claimed today that a British cruiser was sunk and a destroyer set afire in a clash with light German naval formations near the Channel Islands off the French coast last night.

The German claim said the cruiser was hit by three to four torpedoes and blew up.

The German craft was escorting a convoy through the channel when they were sighted by the British destroyers 60 miles southwest of the channel islands, the broadcast said.

There was no immediate confirmation.

Blaze Destroys Famous Barracks

WINNIPEG, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Fire today destroyed the barracks of the Royal Winnipeg Rifles, Western Canada's oldest infantry regiment, formerly the 90th Rifles, the Little Black Devils whose history dates back to Fort Gary days.

The two-storey frame building, constructed by the Hudson's Bay Company, contained a priceless museum, housing historic documents and battle flags captured in the South African and First Great wars.

The origin of the fire was not known and there was no immediate estimate of the damage.

Weather Holds Up Search For Plane

OTTAWA, Oct. 23. — (CP) — Air Force headquarters announced today that search for the R.C.A.F. Liberator missing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence area since Oct. 19 with 24 men aboard, has been held up by weather conditions.

The headquarters statement said that while another squadron was added to the search, bringing the total number of planes engaged in it to more than 100, "searchers must await better flying conditions."

"A constant watch is being maintained by aircraft detection corps and the army and navy for any clues that may lead to the location of the missing aircraft," the statement said.

Think Nazis Down Swedish Airliner

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 23.—A new crisis in Swedish-German relations threatened today following reports that an unidentified warplane, presumably German, shot down a Swedish passenger plane off the west coast of Sweden last night, killing 11 of the 13 persons aboard.

The airliner crashed in flames on the Swedish island of Holloe, in the Skagerrak about 45 miles north of Goteborg, after being under attack for 10 minutes.

News of the disaster caused a sensation here, and it was believed that it would have a serious reaction in Swedish official quarters as well as with the general public, if the general assumption that the attacking plane was German should prove correct.

Popular indignation was heightened by the fact that another Swedish passenger plane was shot down under similar circumstances two months ago. The attacker in that instance also was believed to have been German, although its identity never has been established officially.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 23.—After beating off a vigorous German counter-attack, troops of the British-Canadian Eighth Army have pushed forward in the centre of the Italian front to take Lupara, on the road to Isernia, it was announced today.

The Eighth Army is pushing northwestward through rugged country in a flanking thrust aimed at Rome. Canadian troops are heavily engaged in the fighting, although their precise position cannot be divulged.

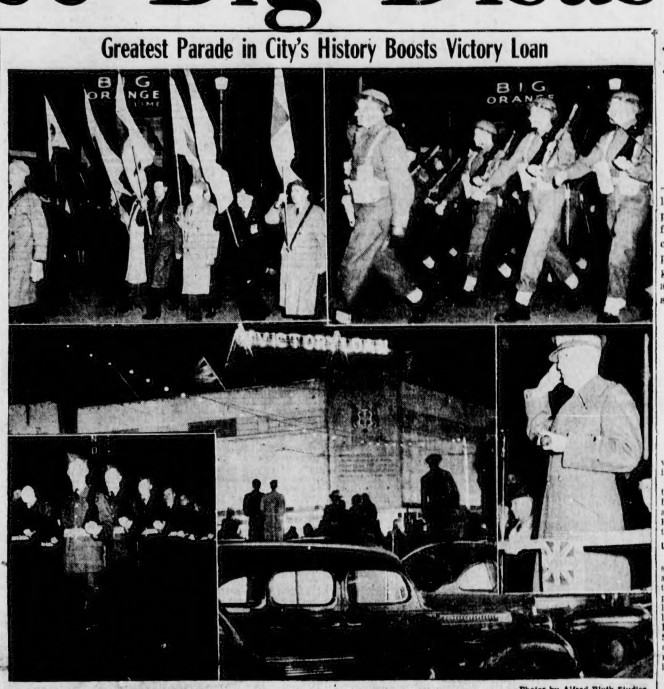

An official Eighth Army report highly praises the dash and battle efficiency of the Canadian troops and says they are 'making progress" over difficult ground, keeping up a constant duel with "retreating Germans."

Greatest Parade in City's History Boosts Victory Loan

Nearly all Edmonton residents either marched or cheered Friday night when a record-breaking parade in support of Canada's Fifth Victory Loan drive, moved along Jasper Avenue. It is estimated that 50,000 persons witnessed the lavish and thrilling spectacle. Above are scenes of the parade taken by The Edmonton Bulletin cameraman. Top, at the left, is the color party of the Canadian Corps Association. To the right above is part of "B" Coy of the 2nd (Reserve) Battalion of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment. Second Lt. Basil Linton is in front. A feature of the parade was the faded battle colors of the 49th Battalion, C.E.F., famed Edmonton infantry unit in the First Great War. The colors were carried by a color party from the perpetuating unit, the 2nd (Reserve) Battalion, The Loyal Edmonton Regiment. Below at the left is a file of airmen from the smart No. 3 "M" depot precision squad. The centre scene is of the fireworks drawing attention to the loan, that blazed atop the Hudson's Bay Company store at 103 street and Jasper Avenue. Standing at the right of the layout is Maj.-Gen. W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., taking the salute at the reviewing stand at Jasper Avenue and 101 street.

Greatest Raid

Allied Bombers Hit Japs Hard In New Guinea

By DON CASWELL
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Oct. 23.—Allied Liberator bombers flattened enemy positions and a force of several thousand Japanese troops concentrated northwest of Finschhafen, New Guinea, under the weight of 221 tons of explosives, a communique disclosed today.

It was the greatest mass attack of the New Guinea campaign, and a spokesman at Allied headquarters indicated that casualties ran high among the enemy troops cowering in their jungle positions.

The bombers, striking in support of embattled Australian troops who have been holding off repeated Japanese attacks in the area for the past week, hit the surprised enemy early Thursday.

AREA BEATEN FLAT

The main weight of the attack fell upon enemy buildings, supply dumps and troop huts at Satelberg, 10 miles northwest of Finschhafen, and Wareo, about five miles nearer to the coast.

Explosions and fires ripped through the Japanese positions and when the bombers roared away it appeared as if the entire target area had been beaten flat.

The enemy concentrations around Satelberg and Wareo had been trying to break through the Australian lines to rejoin their main body on the coast above Finschhafen.

City's Greatest Parade

50,000 Edmontonians Cheer Mighty Military Procession In Speed Victory Display

All Edmonton went downtown Friday evening to see the greatest parade in all of Edmonton's history. Both the huge crowd and mammoth parade were concrete demonstrations of acceptance on the part of Edmontonians of the greatest challenge to home front patriotism since the start of the Second World War.

From rooftops, balconies and office windows, and along sidewalks flanking the mile-long route of march, the jam-packed thousands thunderously applauded the arresting theme to "Speed the Victory" by purchasing bonds in Canada's greatest public flotation in history, the Fifth Victory Loan.

Veteran city police officers and other observers estimated that 50,000 persons lined the route of march. It was also estimated that nearly 10,000 participated in the parade itself. The procession was 45 minutes passing a given point.

SHOW OF POWER

The parade itself was strikingly suggestive of the assembled might of Allied power forming the great war coalition of the United Nations.

The solidarity of armed comradeship, born in the fiery furnace of the world's greatest struggle, was typified vividly and cleverly in a score of ways.

A unique feature of the parade, and striking proof that old suspicions and prejudices are melting away in the common sufferings and sacrifices of war, was the appearance for the first time of the hammer and sickle flag of the Soviet Union.

This fluttering red symbol of the great and gallant Russian peoples waved along side of that age-long cloth symbol of freedom and justice the Union Jack. And next in line in the foremost four of 41 jeeps carrying colors of the United Nations, waved another great symbol of freedom's battles, the Stars and Stripes of the United States of America.

Looking right in place as a member of the big four in the winning fight being waged against Axis

Police Search Fails to Find Count's Shirt

By E. V. W. JONES

NASSAU, Bahamas, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Maj. Herbert Pemberton of the Bahamas police reported today that a search of Alfred De Marigny's chicken farm and his other Nassau property failed to produce a missing shirt which the accused son-in-law told of wearing the night Sir Harry Oakes was killed.

Other clothing worn by the yachtsman, who is on trial for murder in the Bahama supreme court, has been introduced as evidence, but crown witnesses have sworn that the defendant could not account for the shirt.

DIG FOR CLUE

Dressed again in a white linen suit, De Marigny leaned against the bars of the prisoner's dock as Pemberton resumed the stand to undergo further cross-examination by defence counsel Godfrey Higgs.

Higgs brought out that even the outhouse at de Marigny's chicken farm had been dug up by officers in their quest for the shirt.

Pemberton answered yes when Higgs asked whether he had threatened to hold employees at the farm as accomplices in the slaying if

1,500,000 Men Being Encircled

LONDON, Oct. 23.— (AP) —The fleeing hordes of Hitler, outsmarted and cut to pieces by smashing Soviet forces along almost the entire eastern front, are in imminent peril of suffering their biggest disaster since the Red army launched its sweeping summer offensive.

According to estimates based on reports from the battlefront, possibly 1,500,000 Germans face entrapment by successful Red army flanking thrusts in the Dnieper bend, above the Crimea, and around Kiev and Gomel.

Some sources estimate that upwards of 1,000,000 Nazis are crowded into the Dnepropetrovsk area alone.

Red Army columns have slashed their way to within 31 miles of Dnepropetrovsk to the northwest and were within 18 miles of Krivoi Rog, a Russian communique said today.

LENGTHEN PINCER ARM

Below Kiev, swift tank spearheads smashed out from their bridgehead at Pereyaslav to lengthen the northern pincer arm around the Dnieper Bend. More than 50 towns were liberated and the important rail line between Dnepropetrovsk and Krivoi Rog was severed. Other Soviet units were within 16 miles of Znamenka, rail terminal to the northwest and an important point in the Nazi communications set-up.

In the most stubbornly contested battle since Stalingrad the Red Army has the Nazis backed up to the northern edge of Melitopol, the city is in flames, Moscow reports said.

The Ukrainian capital of Kiev, principal German base along the middle Dnieper is slowly being throttled in a Red army pincers movement and Gomel, strategic enemy defence base, has been bypassed in the Soviet offensive into White Russia.

END OF NAZI REIGN

Fall of these centres would mean an end to the German reign in the Ukraine, the Crimea and even in all southern Russia, with the Red army gaining another wedge in its drive toward the old Polish frontier west of White Russia.

Nazis Claim 33 Allied Ships Sunk

LONDON, Oct. 23. — (CP) — A Berlin broadcast claimed today that German submarines have sunk 33 Allied merchant ships thus far in October, and seriously damaged 13. The broadcast said 28 of the sunk or damaged ships were British and others American or Netherlands.

R.A.F., Canucks Batter Kassel In Night Attack

The city housed the big Fieseler plant, one of the Reich's major assembly units in the manufacture of Focke-Wulf-190 fighter planes, and many other aircraft factories.

It also embraced the Henschel Locomotive Works, largest in all Europe, and the stoppage of production at that plant would greatly increase the strain on Germany's already - disrupted transportation system.

ADMIT PREVIOUS DAMAGE

Berlin acknowledged that Kassel had been damaged badly in the last R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. raid on Oct. 3, when the British dumped an estimated 1,500 tons of explosives on the city.

Many night fighters battled the raiders en route to the target and several were destroyed by the British gunners.

R.A.F. fighters ranged over the continent on supporting intruder operations, destroying one enemy plane, and other planes laid mines in enemy waters.

German planes rounded out a week of feeble nightly raids on London last night to give London its 660th air raid alarm of the war. Bombs fell in several suburbs, causing casualties.

The raid came just after dusk and was the earliest since the Germans abandoned their "blitz" on London in 1941.

While smaller subscriptions have shown up in greater volume so far, "special - names" investments are coming in at about the same speed and the same volume as before, said the statement. Loan officials said this would indicate the general canvass and payroll campaign has increased its range and speed through experience, and that the special canvass effort has already hit its regular stride.

5th and 8th Armies Score New Advances

Alife area of the upper Volturno and in the same section seized tactically-important ground on the approaches to the new German defence line, 90 to 100 miles below Rome.

Another German counter-attack against Eighth Army troops in the Montecilfone area, west of Termoli, also was repulsed.

Off the Italian east coast, British destroyers sank a tanker and Allied torpedo boats sank at least three enemy ships in the Leghorn area of the Ligurian sea, more than 250 miles north of the fighting front.

PLANES HIT ENEMY

A northbound convoy consisting of a tanker, a lighter and three other boats was intercepted Tuesday night and the tanker and one lighter probably hit. The following night, the torpedo boats torpedoed one lighter out of convoy of three with four escort ships.

The Northwest African air forces continued their attack on German railway communications near Grosseto and Orvieto north of Rome and loosed around-the-clock attacks on troops concentrations, gun positions and motor transport throughout the battle area.

A direct hit was scored on an ammunition dump south of San Salvo behind the enemy lines.

Medium bombers also swept across the Adriatic and bombed an airfield at Aliens' touching off many fires in the dispersal area.

NAZIS RAID NAPLES

The Germans attacked Naples harbor Thursday night, but caused no damage, and lost four planes in attacks on Allied shipping off the North African coast. One enemy plane also was shot down. One Allied plane was lost in all operations.

British Mid-Eastern bombers attacked Maritza field on Rhodes Thursday night for the third night in succession and 13th time this month. Bomb bursts were observed all over the landing area and four fires were started.

Other Middle Eastern planes attacked shipping and harbor facilities at Naxos and Syros islands in the Aegean. All planes returned safely from the Aegean raids.

Front dispatches said Fifth Army troops have driven along the slopes of the rugged Matese mountains in central Italy almost to within artillery range of the eastern flank of the new German defence line.

The Americans, holding the right end of the Fifth Army front, pushed northward from Roccaromana and Alife toward Semprano, where enemy forces were digging in on the forward slope of the ridge line seven miles south of Venafro.

British elements of the Fifth Army already were probing the coastal end of the new enemy defence line, anchored on Mondragone, 90 miles south of Rome and 27 miles southwest of Venafro, preparatory to a full-scale assault.

Across the Matese mountains, the Eighth Army also was sending out patrols to test German defences in advance of what was expected to be a powerful flanking attack toward Rome.

Indian Delegates Urge Government To Restore 'Rights'

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Fifty-five delegates who said they represent some 130,000 Indians across Canada marched to Parliament Hill yesterday to petition the government that their "rights" in regard to military service and income tax be observed. Nine of them wore tribal native costumes.

They came to see Prime Minister Mackenzie King but he was not at his office they left the petition with J. W. Pickersgill, his private secretary.

The delegates contend Indians in Canada are exempted from paying income tax by a proclamation of King George I, which put the tribes under the direct jurisdiction of His Majesty. They also say Queen Victoria signed a treaty granting Indians military exemption.

Alberta Seeks Soldiers' Data On Settlement

The Alberta government will endeavor to ascertain the number of soldier settlers who may be established on crown lands in Alberta after the war, the total acreage which might be involved in soldier settlement plans, and designation of specific areas considered for settlement, if a recommendation by agriculture sub-committee of the Alberta Post-War Reconstruction Committee to its parent body is implemented.

Alfred Speakman, Independent M.L.A. for Red Deer and chairman of the sub-committee, said his group had recommended that the government appreciate the Dominion Soldier Settlement Board on the soldier settlement question, after three-day deliberations this week at the Legislature Buildings.

The sub-committee further recommended that if the province should receive the information to be asked for, it should undertake to withhold these specific areas from settlement, and hold them in reserve for soldier settlement purposes, Mr. Speakman added. "The lands should be held in reserve until such time as an agreement has been arrived at between provincial and Dominion authorities as to disposition of the lands."

OTHER ITEMS

Other items discussed at the sub-committee meetings included general provincial policies on irrigation, Alberta's general land policy, including question of crown lands which might revert, problems of weed-infested farms, and specific recommendations as to projects which should be developed in the post-war period.

"During the course of discussions, much valuable information was secured and many problems explored, all of which will form part of a report to be made at the end of the year," it was said.

On the agriculture sub-committee are Dr. Robert Newton, president, University of Alberta; Robert Gardiner, president, United Farmers of Alberta; H. E. Nichols, secretary, Alberta Farmers' Union; Harold E. Tanner, president, Edmonton branch, Canadian Legion, and O. S. Longman, deputy minister of agriculture.

IRRIGATION PLAN

Among post-war plans being studied by the committee and its agriculture sub-committee is the Pearce irrigation scheme, which was subject of a submission to the main body by a delegation from the Hanna Board of Trade. This plan would reclaim for agricultural purposes a large section of arid land between Hanna and the Saskatchewan boundary.

An off-shoot of this plan is a suggestion that part of lands reclaimed under the Pearce or a similar scheme would be used for soldier settlement purposes. Specifically mentioned have been lands in the Gleichen district and along the Red Deer River and north.

So far, government sources have not indicated any particular area as being specifically recommended for this type of project. While the Pearce plan is being studied as a whole, any breakdown would have to wait until decision to implement the main plan was made.

Report British Still Hold Isle

BODRUM, Turkey, Oct. 21.—(Delayed.)—(CP)—British forces were reported today still holding the Dodecanese island of Leros in the face of repeated German aerial attacks and attempts by the Nazis to effect landings.

A report reaching neutral Turkey said the Germans on the nearby island of Cos used stolen British signals in an attempt to sneak boats by Allied patrols guarding the beaches of Leros but that Allied naval craft sank two of three German gunboats.

The report said Italians manning anti-aircraft guns fled when German planes bombed and machine-gunned them.

Another report said 700 Fascists, being evacuated from Cos after the Germans recaptured the island from the Allies, were aboard a tanker sunk by Allied naval craft and only 30 of them survived.

Himmler's Grip On Nazi People Is Strengthened

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

BERNE, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Strengthening his hold on the policing power in Germany, Minister of the Interior Heinrich Himmler now has made "anything other than complete subjugation to the will of the government" a punishable offence, it was reported here today.

This was brought out by the German party newspaper, Schwarze Korps, in an article entitled, "There is no defeatism."

Himmler's tightening grip on the German home front was also described in the Swiss weekly Weltwoche which said that he now has brought under his control Nazi anti - aircraft defences, fighter planes which operate over home territory and even some regular troops.

The Berlin correspondent of the Zurich newspaper Neue Zurcher Zeitung, noting that executions for speaking against the war or expressing defeatist sentiments had been reported before, asserted that "it is something new to include punishments for mere jeering and mocking."

SUPER-SURVEILLANCE

The German newspaper Das Reich appeared almost to chafe at the super-surveillance, declaring in an article entitled "Silent Battle" that from now on "it is not necessary to conspire against the government, but even a careless word can bring a person before the political courts."

The Schwarze Korps revealed that some persons recently were executed for slathering fliers who parachuted onto German territory.

The Swiss weekly Weltwoche also said that "according to reliable reports Himmler is demanding complete subordination of the army under his jurisdiction and even (Field Marshal Erwin) Rommel does not have a free hand in Italy. . . ."

Edmonton Buys Nearly Million In Single Day

the first-day total since the campaign opened now stands at $10,881,700, or 29.4 per cent of the $37,000,000 provincial quota.

Edmonton tops Calgary in the general sales and payroll sections, having 7,809 purchases for 32 per cent of the quota for these sections; Calgary has sold 5,979 bonds for 21 per cent of the section quota.

Two Hills continues to lead in the North Alberta rural sales, with 66 per cent of its quota reached Friday night.

Luscar is still second with 61 per cent of its quota. Berwyn is third with 47 per cent. Innisfree has 43 per cent. Vegreville and Jasper 42 per cent and Provost and Wetaskiwin are also tied with 40 per cent of unit quotas.

Two units in Military District 13, Camrose basic training centre and the ordnance depot, Calgary, have earned their second pennants in the Victory Loan campaign, both having subscribed 131 per cent of their quotas with more than 60 per cent of their personnel participating. Ten out of the seventeen groups into which the district is divided, have passed their dollar quotas, and for this accomplishment Brigadier F. M. W. Harvey, .C., M.C., has sent out a special letter of congratulations, and then went on to call upon the army in Alberta for 100 per cent participation.

At the close of the fifth day Military District 13 had subscribed $443,850 or a percentage of 105.88, the district thereby maintaining its position among military district leaders in Canada.

On a routine inspection trip, J. H. Tapley, Toronto, president, Swift Canadian Co., Ltd., arrived in Edmonton Saturday, and will spend several days here. He is a guest at the Macdonald hotel.

police found any hidden evidence there.

Telling of the search of the farm, a small house on another part of the island and a garage, Higgs asked:

"Was this done without notice to the accused and without a search warrant?"

"Yes," replied the witness. "Except for the chicken farm, and defence counsel was there at the time."

The prosecution has stressed the significance of the missing shirt, Sir Harry was beaten four times on the head and his body and bed were set afire, and the crown has made the point that the attacker's clothing likely would have bloodstains or burns.

Mines in Alberta To Supply 750,000 Tons Coal For B.C.

CALGARY, Oct. 23.— (CP)—Alberta mines will be called upon to furnish British Columbia with approximately 750,000 tons of domestic coal for the year ended next March 31, which means that Albertans will be obliged to get along with four tons where they previously used five, said Mr. Justice C. Campbell McLaurin, regional coal representative for Alberta, yesterday.

In addition to B.C. requirements, the Alberta consumption has been materially increased by reason of the large number of military establishments in the province. Prior to last year, little domestic coal was exported to B.C., but coal now mined in that province is almost wholly diverted to industrial and naval needs, he said.

Tories Advocate Rational Farm Reform Program

MINNEDOSA, Man., Oct. 23.—(CP)—John Bracken, national Progressive Conservative leader, said here last night the party's platform for agricultural recovery advocates rational reform. He said details of the agricultural program would be revealed in his address at Lethbridge Tuesday night.

Mr. Bracken told a public meeting that the platform includes plans for expansion of markets at home and abroad, a land utilization policy which would eliminate submarginal lands, and a plan to assure fair prices to the farmer that bear a proper relationship to the prices he has to pay for the necessities of life.

PARTY PROGRAM

Of the party agricultural policy, he said:

"In it, I hope to recognize the good of the world of yesterday and fit it into our program of the future. Our plan for the third of the population, which at present receives but one-sixth of the national income, is based upon agricultural reform.

"Unless we have rational agricultural reform, we must be prepared to ration scarcity when we should be distributing plenty in a wise manner."

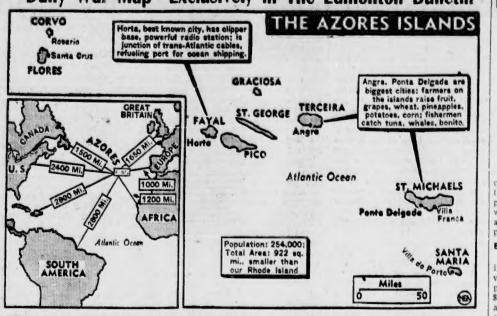

Mr. Bracken said that when the time comes for him to pass from the political scene "I would sooner have it said of me that I helped in some small way to make conditions better for those who till the soil than anything else they might say."

Railmen Reach Third of Quota

WINNIPEG, Oct. 22.—At the end of the first week in the fifth Victory loan campaign, Canadian National Railways employees in the western region have reached a third of their total objective, W. R. Devenish, vice-president and general manager, announced yesterday. Contributions amount to 20 per cent more than those collected in the corresponding period of the previous loan.

A number of departments have already attained their individual objectives and several have passed them. The district freight office in Winnipeg doubled its quota. In one small department, a single employee subscribed the whole of the quota. Every one of the six red caps in the Winnipeg station bought bonds, to the amount of $500.

"There has been great enthusiasm at mass meetings of officers and employees in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Vancouver and other centres," Mr. Devenish said. "The reports of canvassers are most encouraging and we have every reason to be confident of the result."

Raids, Saboteurs Delay Production Of German Bomb

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Allied aerial bombs and saboteurs are delaying production of Germany's newest "secret weapon"—a bomb with terrific explosive power—a dispatch yesterday from Berne to the newspaper Aftontidningen said.

The dispatch said that three weeks ago Dr. Robert Ley, German labor front leader, in a speech at Leipzig, said it would be six weeks before the new weapon, which he claimed would blot out a city, would be ready for production because of delays caused "by treason and terror attacks."

Farm Returns Above "Parity" Says Gardiner

OTTAWA, Oct. 23—(CP)—Hogs and steers and—the major feed grains—oats and barley—now are returning and will return in 1944 prices to the farmer which are above what has been termed "parity," Agriculture Minister Gardiner said yesterday at a press conference.

Oats prices had risen from 49.1 cents a bushel in 1941 to 61.5 in 1944, the latter a guaranteed advance payment. The average for 1926-29, which Mr. Gardiner said is often accepted as a basis for parity prices, was 59.7.

BARLEY RETURNS

Barley was 57.7 cents a bushel in 1941 and 78.8, guaranteed advance, in 1944, against a 1926-29 price of 73.6. Hogs in 1941 were $9.95 a hundredweight for B1 grade and $12.97 in 1944, compared with a 1926-29 price of $11.61.

Steers were $8.70 a hundredweight in 1941 and $11.60 in 1944, compared with $9.04 in the 1926-29 period.

"These figures indicate that the prices of hogs and steers bear a much more favorable relationship to the prices of grain in the four years of war than in the basic period (1926-29," Mr. Gardiner said.

Hogs and steers bore a more favorable relationship to the prices of grain in the first 2½ years of the war period. While grain, on an average over the four years, was below the average of the basic period, hogs and steers were both above the average.

Dear

Well, we are well into our Fifth Victory Loan campaign and reports for the first week of the drive are very encouraging. There is no doubt that Edmonton will go over the top, and you can rest assured that the whole of Canada will back you boys to the limit. Everybody who hasn't already packed Christmas parcels for you men and women in uniform, is busy doing it now, and we're getting ready for the winter ahead in earnest now. That in brief is the week in Edmonton, where chilly winds have been whipping the leaves around at a great rate, and late autumn rains have made furnaces and open fires a joy.

Boyd McBride, K.C., veteran city barrister, was elected president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce for the 1943-44 term.

Sven N. Oftedal, formerly managing editor of a Norwegian newspaper, who escaped from occupied Norway, stated in Edmonton Monday that Norway has found the Nazis are not a super race, and through the underground, are constantly outwitting them. A program of construction alone cannot solve the unemployment problem that will follow the war, but businesses must be prepared to co-operate with the government in the solution of post-war problems, K. M. Cameron, Ottawa, chief engineer in the Dominion department of public works, stated here Tuesday. The undeveloped treasures of the north are the foundation of development for Edmonton, Charles McCrea, Toronto, president of Toronto General Trusts Corporation, said here Monday.

October 23

The Victory Loan parade last night was a tremendous success. It was the longest and most impressive parade in this city's history, according to some old timers who are well qualified to speak. It should provide a great stimulus for the Victory Loan.

The weather remains chilly, and while the snow is holding off fairly well, there is a threat of snow and further cold that refuses to leave.

That's all for now. Best of everything until next week.

To Every Man a Job

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, "with the full authority of the Government," told an audience at Orangeville that there must be full employment in Canada in peacetime as there is in wartime. "If," he said, "under the stresses of war we can create full employment for all our people, we should be equally able to do so in times of peace." This is plain sense, and a definite pledge on the part of the Government which Mr. Mackenzie represents.

But there is no use supposing that everyone believes it can be done. When the possibility of full employment was suggested a few years ago it was hotly challenged in some quarters and ridiculed in others. The public authority, it was argued, could only in a limited way affect the measure of employment offering in the country. It is idle to suppose that all these doubting Thomases have been converted in the meantime.

But the fact remains that Canada is able to support its people, because it always has done so. Even in the worst years of the depression its people were fed and clothed and sheltered, by one means or another. The standard of living was very low for hundreds of thousands, but there was never a time when the amount of wealth created was insufficient to a good standard for all. What was lacking was such a distribution of earning power as would have put the fruits of labor within reach of every person.

Such a distribution will have to be made when peace returns and war industry dwindles away. That can be done, and will have to be done, whatever departures in public policy are necessary. There must be a job for every man—and woman—who needs wages or salary to live.

V

Feuds Don't Help

The Balkan peninsula is living up to its reputation for turbulence. Not to be outdone by the Yugoslavs, who have two armies alternately fighting the occupation forces and denouncing each other, the Greeks have three guerilla groups which divide their time between making war on the Nazis and taking pot-shots at one another.

Whether they realize it or not, these zealots are prolonging the miseries of their peoples, by postponing the day when outside help can be given to the ousting of the Axis forces and the freeing of their countries. Nothing is much less likely than that the Allies will attempt any large-scale invasion of the area until something like peace and unity has come to prevail between the factions. And without such an invasion there is no prospect that either Yugoslavia or Greece will get quick relief.

United, the rival forces in either country would double their own striking power, could be given equipment which they need, and would guarantee that British, American or Canadian troops landing on their shores would get powerful support. While they continue to bicker and even fight each other, these advantages are being wasted, the common enemy is benefiting, and the people in both countries endure the hardships imposed upon them by their alien masters and the inevitable scarcity of food and other necessaries of life.

The Sack of Rome

There is plenty of historical support for Madrid despatches saying that the Nazis are sacking Rome, in anticipation of having to move out. They have passed up no favorable opportunities to loot elsewhere in Italy or in other countries. That they would ignore the "cultural and historic monuments" about which Herr Goebbels was so concerned a few weeks ago was not to be supposed. What they cannot carry away they will probably destroy, as at Naples.

Rome is a treasury of relics, antiques and masterpieces of world famous artists. In any circumstances these would excite the cupidity of the military descendants of the Goths and Huns, and to the profits of thievery there is added for their inspiration the opportunity to take vengeance on the Italians for ousting Mussolini and breaking with the Axis. Either incitement would be sufficient; together they must be irresistible to Hitler's trained bandits.

It can be hoped, however, that there remains in Germany enough of the old-time veneration for such treasures that those which are carried away will be put in places of safety from which they may in time be restored to their rightful owners. There would be no military advantage in depriving future generations of these souvenirs. They are probably stolen for their market value, or to embellish the halls at Berchtesgaden and other centres in the Reich.

V

The Fighters Are Buying

A highly significant fact is that the members of Canada's fighting forces at home and abroad are subscribing to the Fifth Victory Loan not only more heavily than they did to former issues, but in amounts which are very large in proportion to the pay they receive.

The most of our sailors, soldiers and airmen are young men, who have little accumulated savings, and who have the young man's natural inclination to spend rather than to put away reserves for the far-off future. They are not highly paid, save in the higher ranks. But they are buying bonds at a rate which sets a pace for civilians, the circumstances taken into account.

The reasons are apparent if one cares to look for them. These men know, as civilians cannot know, how imperative is the need of keeping our war effort going all-out. No one can so well understand what it means to those on the fighting fronts whether they are plentifully supplied or scantily supplied with weapons, ammunition, food and all other necessities. They sense, as others cannot, how really the life of a fighting man depends upon the kind and amount of equipment and other supplies that are within his reach, and how the outcome of a battle may hinge, and often does hinge, upon the food and the fighting machinery of the opposing forces.

Knowing these things, our fighters are from their modest rates of pay handing over many millions of dollars to the Government with which to keep the supplies rolling toward the fighting zones. Their example is all the proof civilians need that buying war bonds is not a matter of usual charity. It is a matter of life or death, of victory or defeat. The fighting men are backing themselves and their comrades to the limit. Those who enjoy the safety and the opportunities of civilian life cannot in self-respect and fairness do any less.

November 1st has been set by the post office department as the dead-line for mailing Christmas parcels to soldiers overseas. There is no assurance that parcels mailed after that date will reach their destinations in time. The implication is pretty clear that late mailing will mean late delivery. And the advice is added that the earlier parcels are mailed the more certain it will be that they will reach the recipients before Christmas. It is not therefore advisable to wait until the closing days of October to get the packages in the mails. The sooner the better.

FROM THE WINNIPEG FREE PRESS

Days reaching back to the time when Sir Francis Hincks of the Baldwin-Lafontaine-Hincks trio used to come as an old man to read the "exchange papers" in the office sense, the writers cannot, how really the life of a fighting man depends upon the kind and amount of equipment and other supplies that are within his reach, and how the outcome of a battle may hinge, and often does hinge, upon the food and the fighting machinery of the opposing forces.

Knowing these things, our fighters are from their modest rates of pay handing over many millions of dollars to the Government with which to keep the supplies rolling toward the fighting zones. Their example is all the proof civilians need that buying war bonds is not a matter of usual charity. It is a matter of life or death, of victory or defeat. The fighting men are backing themselves and their comrades to the limit. Those who enjoy the safety and the opportunities of civilian life cannot in self-respect and fairness do any less.

November 1st has been set by the post office department as the dead-line for mailing Christmas parcels to soldiers overseas. There is no assurance that parcels mailed after that date will reach their destinations in time. The implication is pretty clear that late mailing will mean late delivery. And the advice is added that the earlier parcels are mailed the more certain it will be that they will reach the recipients before Christmas. It is not therefore advisable to wait until the closing days of October to get the packages in the mails. The sooner the better.

As he thinketh in his heart, so is he.—Proverbs 23:7.

His thoughts have a high aim, though their dwelling be in the vale of a humble heart.—Montaigne.

"I have had," Dr. Dafoe said, "considerable experience with publishers. In the eight years I worked for Hugh Graham, I noticed that, whenever the public interest was at stake, he put the interest of the Montreal Star second. I served for some years under W. F. Luxton, founder and publisher of the Winnipeg Free Press. Luxton, though his language was the most explosive I ever heard, was a generous square-shooter. My business associate for over 30 years on the Free Press, E. H. Macklin, was the same type—including the language. E. H. was always fair, and though he was dismissed not after business, he did not fear to make business men indignant — sometimes, in notable cases that I remember, very indignant indeed.

"The rule that the patron is always right is by no means of universal application in newspaper work.

Free Relations

"Sir Clifford Sifton, who became proprietor of the Free Press and engaged me as editor, always lived up to his self-denying ordinance in not interfering with the editorial policy of the paper. A very notable illustration of this was in the Reciprocity campaign, when Sir Clifford looked one way and the Free Press the other. The control has now passed to Sir Clifford's family, and the policy of free relations between editor and publisher is continued."

Speaking of politicies in the old home county in Ontario, and of his entry on the Liberal side in early days at Ottawa, Dr. Dafoe said: "In the township from which I came, the Orange Tory had voted for Mackenzie Bowell. But on a certain day at the opening of parliament, I climbed the stairway of the old parliament buildings, listened to a debate, and came down a fighting Grit. And the man who wrought the change was a man by the name of Edward Blake. I had no idea that any man could do with the English language what Blake did that night."

Touching on his choice of a career, Dr. Dafoe said: "Disraeli said that youth was a blunder, manhood a struggle, and age a regret. But I made no blunder when I picked the newspaper game, and I was making no blunder when I picked my political party; and I have no regrets for either. The episode I have just mentioned was the start in politics, and that gave direction to my start in newspaper work."

Came West

"I came to Winnipeg in the year 1886. The legislature was sitting, and one of my first jobs was to report the legislature, for which I was regarded as particularly well qualified after three years in Ottawa. My friend, Chief Justice Prendergast, who is present tonight, was a member of that legislature. The man who was influencing my coming west was Archibald McNee, then well known in Winnipeg. He met me in Ottawa and said, 'I can get you a job on a newspaper,' Winnipeg, on my arrival in May, 1886, was a city of 16,000, with five newspapers. The first paper I called the Manitoba. There were the Sun, and the News. Papers were dying and being born as rapidly that it was difficult to keep track of them.

Stirring Days

"Times were stirring days, and after my arrival everything seemed to happen. I had plenty to write about and plenty to observe.

"In this connection, I would suggest to any young newspaperman that he take special notice of the historic value of the news he is handling. It is all in the day's work at the time. You write an article about it; it goes into the paper, and that is all there is to it—at that time. But you must remember you are dealing with history; you are dealing with things that are a turning-point in the history of your country.

"An instance of what I mean occurred when in the east, in 1885, we began to hear rumors of trouble in the Northwest. It was said to be just gossip.

"But even while they were saying that, I went up to the press gallery to hear Sir Hector Langevin give the announcement of the massacre at Duck Lake, where a group of settlers had been wiped out by the Indians. The result was the Northwest rebellion and eventually the capture of Riel and the problem of his fate.

"The solution of that problem determined the future of political parties in Canada for the next fifty years. Was Riel crazy or not? There were two roads to follow, and there was trouble along either. Which road was going to find out whether Riel was going to be hanged or not. I went up and skirmished for newspaper with the officials. I found a hunch everywhere that he was going to be hanged. One member, Henry J. Morgan, said, 'I do not know anything about it, but you can bet your last money that Riel is going to be hanged.'

Man of Charm

"I have referred to Sir Wilfrid Laurier as he was in those days. Besides having the most complete charm of any public man I ever met, Laurier simply did not know the meaning of fear. Addressing great meetings at the time when feeling against Riel ran highest, this man was free of fear and distrust in every case. Laurier said in Montreal: 'If I had been on the banks of the Saskatchewan, and things the way they were at that time, I would have shouldered a musket myself and joined Riel.' It is a matter of record that eventually Laurier became leader, and I do not need to tell you anything about his career."

A local instance of current news events determining history was given by the speaker. This was an announcement by an Manitoba at a meeting in Portage la Prairie that the Greenway government of Manitoba was going to abolish separate schools. Mr. Martin declared, including the premier learned this from newspaper reports.

"That was like putting a match to prairie grass in the dry reason. The government was committed. My friend, Chief Justice Prendergast, who was a member of the government, resigned over the issue. The government school question, started here at Winnipeg, brought a factor into Dominion politics which affected history in Canada for some years. This issue, as well as those resulting from the Riel

The Churches of the West Speak Out

Religion Opposes Itself to Pagan Creed of Nazi Hitler

BY DOROTHY THOMPSON

In the dualism of Christian philosophy, and in some Jewish religious philosophy, notably that based upon the book of Job, the spirit of evil has a positive role. The function of Satan is that of the challenger, the tempter. He, too, is but an instrument of the Almighty God. Th dough him men learn to find the good, for he furnishes the contrast, and in this sense the measure, by which God can be determined.

Dorothy Thompson

This is what Goethe meant when he had Mephisto, the spirit of evil, introduce himself to Faust in the following manner:

Faust: Who are you?

Mephisto: I am a part of that power that always willing evil, creates the good.

There is a difference between Mephisto and Hitler—namely Hitler's lack of consciousness of his function. But there are some signs that Mephisto, by creating total evil, he will succeed in serving some good.

This occurs to me in reading the declaration of principles for a just peace, set forth by 144 prominent leaders of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths.

The fact alone of such a declaration, in which seven points are subscribed to by all, without minority reports, is remarkable.

There have been times, when the Jewish faith, as a religion, was prosecuted with sword and fire by the Christian church.

There was a time, during the thirty years' war, when Protestants and Catholics reduced Europe to a wilderness in a quarrel over creeds.

And in two thousand years of history, there was no time when the leaders of the three great religions of western civilization could come out on the platform of a common ethos for a reform of the world.

The creator of this great phenomenon is Hitler. By his repudiation of all religious values; by his persecution of both Christians and Jews; by his attempt to create a pagan creed of force, he has mobilized and revitalized the religious inspiration and the moral values. He has challenged all faiths, to prove whether they be utterly moribund, or have any function in a world of pure force.

He has done more. By the creation of a pseudo-church, a secular German religion, he has compelled even the Russians to take account in the religious instinct.

As Frederick Voight, in his penetrating book, "Unto Caesar", pointed out, the Soviets, though they persecuted the church, never attempted to pervert it. They never put the hammer and sickle above the altar, as Hitler put the swastika above the cross, nor did they attempt to use the church, for their own anti-religious purposes, as Hitler has done.

When Hitler went into Russia, he carried with him quantities of rich altar cloths and churchly vestments. It was the cynical intention of buying the Russian orthodox clergy for his purposes. But the Russian church was deeply distressed as they both have been by the suppression of religion, had the purity to know that what they were being offered was a treasonable conspiracy disguised in Christian vestments, and they repudiated it.

In the case of that loyalty, to both their country and their religion, the church has been restored in Russia, and is establishing contacts with the church throughout the world, notably with the Anglicans.

Of all organized bodies of men in this world, not excluding organized states, the religious faiths have the most right and the strongest duty, to enunciate principles of peace.

For the creation of peace—or organic basis—between man and man, and between man and God—is the purpose of religion.

The great religious faiths stand above nations. Their congregations know no frontiers. Their clergy minister to the human soul. All of them recognize a loyalty above the interests of any nation—namely the loyalty to God, and to ethical and moral principles.

The religious faiths also have a long view of history. Crowns and thrones have perished, kingdoms rose and waned, but they have survived, constant to faith in a moral order of the universe, and are heirs to an enormous wisdom, born of intimate association with the problems of the human psyche and soul, in all countries, and under all forms of government.

Absolutely essential to the creation of a real peace, which must mean a peace which resolves differences, instead of hardening and perpetuating them, are principles acceptable to large bodies of men in all countries, including those of our enemies. The pacification of the world, after this war, is a missionary task. Statesmanship can be used as its instrument. But the spirit cannot be created out of nationalism and national interests, for nationalism is itself the spirit where it has usurped all values and laid hold on the throne of God, is the basic cause of the war.

Therefore it is essential that a voice come out of the darkness to speak for the human race, and for principles above all local and national interests. That this voice should come from men of three creeds, who mutually acclaim one God and man, is altogether fitting and in the correct answer to Hitler.

So let us see, in another column, what they have to say.

For Modernized Finance

BY LORD SEMPHILL, IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS

It is now admitted on all sides that the problem of finance, in the peace conditions, the world is faced is not one of production but of distribution, and by distribution is not meant that there is a scarcity of shipping, locomotives, or motor transport, but failure to distribute money or purchasing power in such a way as to ensure that the goods the world is capable of producing can be bought and, therefore, consumed. Goods are not for long produced if there are no buyers. We therefore have this absurd spectacle of production being artificially restricted and men paid not to produce, whilst as a consequence of this action we have dire poverty.

We have scarcely every avenue and left no stone unturned except down the financial avenue, which is the one where the machinery for the distribution of money is and therefore obviously the one in which the remedy can be found. This avenue has for so long been shrouded in mystery, the mere mention of it has for so long been taboo, the invigorating breezes of public criticism, so essential a part of English life, have for so long been excluded, that, unlike our other institutions which have been obliged to adapt themselves to changing circumstances, our financial mechanism has become dangerously obsolete.

I suggest that your Lordships should read, if you have not already done so, a book entitled Economic Tribulation by the late Mr. Vincent Vickers, at one time a director of the Bank of England. It is published only a year ago. He recognized that the ever-growing capacity of power production to turn out enough goods for the needs of all was an irresistible force, and he made an earnest and urgent appeal to our financial authorities to modernize their system before it was too late. When not diverted to war production, power production is capable of turning out the necessaries, and indeed the luxuries of life in a volume never before in human history conceived of as possible. After the last war we and the rest of the world had more skilled labor, more capital equipment, more raw material than ever had at the beginning of the war. We were capable of producing more real wealth, and we were therefore richer than ever, but we were thinking in terms of reality. If our bookkeeping system, which should reflect reality, assured us that we were poorer—as it did—then there was something wrong with our bookkeeping, not with the facts. We prefer to believe our bookkeeping rather than our senses. The superabundance which was actually produced we termed "general over-production," instead of recognizing it for what it was, general under-consumption—the failure of the financial system to distribute enough licenses-to-consume to enough people. Instead of increasing effective demand we concentrated upon limiting and destroying supply.

"I've got your face back to where it was in 1938—I hope we can keep it that way now!"

SIDE GLANCES

Comedy of the Missing Glasses

Journalist Without Eyes Like Tiger Without Claws

By B. T. RICHARDSON

SAN FRANCISCO—It started in the airport at Windsor, Ont., when Arthur Ford, editor of the London Free Press and president of The Canadian Press, bustled in with his usual hurrying, his soft felt hat on the side of his head and the black tape from his spectacles fluttering nervously in the Detroit breeze. He was planning forces with us on the Canadian press expedition to Australia, Lorenzo Pare of Ottawa and Quebec and I having flown down from the Canadian capital.

We exchanged courtesies and comments on the red tape of travelling and Arthur Ford had a smudge across his nose of ink from being fingered by the U.S. authorities. He gave every sign of having just made it to the airport in time to catch the plane for Detroit, Chicago and San Francisco. He went to the washroom and washed off the smudge, and on the plane came in from New York to pick us up, he started feverishly running through his pockets. "Where are my glasses?" he asked. So I said, politely: "What's that on your nose?"

That was merely the pair of glasses that Arthur Ford carries around anchored to a black ribbon. They seem to be purely ornamental. For the real business of reading a menu, a morning paper or a ship company's warning that the passengers travel at their own risk, Arthur uses another pair of glasses. They are made up by prescription in his home town and he carries them in a black case. A quick search discovered them left on the ticket desk of the Windsor airport.

Pare and I should have known enough to put a special guard on those glasses then and there. We would be spending a lot of time looking for them in the course of 20,000 miles of travelling together, and Australia was not going to look like much to Arthur Ford without his glasses. How can a man broaden his mind about a new country if he cannot read the labels on the catsup bottles and the paragraphs of war news in the papers!

We rescued the glasses from a restaurant table at the Chicago airport, and then Arthur's guardian angel followed him on another plane to San Francisco and he arrived with full stock of spectacles with which to view the golden city of the Pacific. Under the well known California sun, I suggested that Arthur and Lorenzo follow my example and buy some sun glasses. After all, the sun is likely to be bright in the Australian summer and what would the Australians be thinking of the Canadians who won the Melburne cup because we were blinking in the sunlight? But that was a mistake. A man who has trouble retaining two pairs of glasses is apt to find his trouble increased by the cube root of three if he buys a third pair. This was the case with Arthur Ford. We sauntered down to take a look at China Town. First thing Arthur would say, after a characteristic and futile rummage through three or four pockets: "Where's my glasses?" This happened when we went over to view San Francisco's city hall, which is apparently modeled after the Manitoba legislative building. It also happened as we rode along on San Francisco's ancient street car system. We took a ferry ride over the Bay to Oakland. We went out to the beach at Cliff House. We did a great deal of touristing and rubber-necking around San Francisco in the 10 days or so we waited to sail, and Arthur's batting average in having his glasses when he wanted them was not impressive.

The chambermaid at our hotel dug his glasses' case out of the bed one morning and saved the expedition the cost of buying Arthur another case. No one has ever mislaid anything better, in the experience of this writer, than the time that Dr. D. B. Marsh mislaid his evening clothes in London. Eng., when he was invited to the Stationers' banquet at Mansion House and was to be seated next to the Prince of Wales. But Arthur Ford is well on the way to eclipsing this record.

We have had a conference on the question whether we should send a rush wire to the optometrist's in London, Ont., for a spare half dozen extra sets of Arthur's glasses. We could carry them in a strong box and hire a bodyguard to watch. But this has come to nothing. It looks as though we will take our chances in Australia, and that means we may be reading the morning paper to Arthur over the breakfast coffee in Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane, in order to keep him in touch with the war news.

A great deal that Arthur has read in the San Francisco papers, of course, would as well have been missed. If he lost his glasses, he would not have been reading the anti-Russian and anti-British editorials in the Hearst papers right here in Hearst's home town. He would have felt better for having missed them. He would be seen scanning through the San Francisco press for items on Canada, and throwing them down with the remark: "Well, I wonder if Canada is still in the war?" But he would not be able to read the script in the radio broadcast on Canada that Ford and Richardson put on while here. And he would have missed reading the San Francisco Chronicle and Chester Rowell's editorials for a week, and that is something anyone would regret missing.

The success and failure of our mission to Melbourne may be such as to cause us to rest upon the issue whether or not we will be able to deliver Arthur Ford to Australia and bring him home again with his glasses. We will have to let you know later how we came out.

Major And Minor Notes

By John Oliver

DATES for the presentation at the Strand theatre by the Edmonton Civic Opera Society of Rudolf Friml's comedy opera "The Firefly" have been set for Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, Nov. 16, 17 and 18. This will be the first occasion on which the society has appeared in a theatre other than the Empire. But the Empire, as is generally known, is housing personnel engaged in the war effort, and therefore is unavailable for its normal use. Rather than have the opera company in difficulties over obtaining a house, Alex. Entwisle, chief executive of the theatrical enterprises that bear his name, offered the Strand for three days. In the absence of this consideration, it is doubtful if the society would have functioned this season.

In the past the society has given generously to worthy objects from the proceeds of its activities, and the same procedure will be followed this year. Prior to the outbreak of war scholarships were given to assist deserving and promising students in obtaining a musical education. Among the winners were Noreen Bristow, who will sing the leading feminine role in "The Firefly" and Egon Grapentin, concert violinist. Since the outbreak of war, benefactions of the society have gone to organizations and works associated with the war effort. Thus did the Queen's Canadian Fund receive $1,300; the Red Cross $1,000, and the Merchant Marine $500. On another occasion the Rotary Club was assisted in its community service endeavors by another production. To guard against a day when there might be no profits from a show, and to insure a "nest egg" with which to carry on, the society has invested the larger part of its available liquid resources, totalling several hundred dollars, in Victory Bonds, at least one bond having been purchased in each loan.

Mrs. J. B. Carmichael, general musical director, has added Bernice McBeth, well known soprano, to the cast of "The Firefly", to sing the role of "Suzette." With her experience both as a soloist, and in stage routine she is reported to be an added tower of strength to the cast. Also, the opening of Act 3 a specialty dance number has been arranged. This will feature Juneau Moore and Ray T. Moore, and they will glide around the stage to the melting strains of that popular hesitation waltz of enduring beauty and popularity, "Sympathy."

Mrs. Carmichael also reports that "by popular demand" she has incorporated in the score "The Donkey Serenade", which made its first appearance in the Hollywood version of "The Firefly" adapted for Jeanette MacDonald and sung by Allan Jones. "The Donkey Serenade" was arranged by Herbert Stothart, musical director for Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer from Friml's haunting "Chansonette" which was the hit song of the Ziegfeld Follies back in 1923 and which has been retained in the repertoire of many concert artists ever since. It is expected to be one of the highwater marks of the production.

Portia White, Negro contralto, who will appear in recital at First Baptist church on the evenings of Oct. 26 and 27 under the sponsorship of the Women's Mission Circle of the church, will give a different program on each night. Her opening program will include The Praise of God, by Beethoven. Plaisir d Amour, Martini; The Lass With the Delicate Air, Arne; The Cry of Rachel, Salter; Clorinda, Morgan; Think of Me, Lady Scott; The Wind's Work, Benjamin; aria, My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice, from "Samson and Delilah", Saint-Saens; Thou Art Repose, Evening Boat Song, and Death and the Maiden, all by Schubert: The Blacksmith, Brahms; My Lord What a Morning, Little David, Play on Your Harp, and Deep River, all arranged by Burleigh and No Hidin' Place by Brown.

For her second program, Miss White will sing: Thanks Be To Thee and Yea, 'Mid Chains, by Handel; I Attempt From Love's Sickness to Fly, Purcell; Lament of Isis, Bantock; My Lover is a Fisherman, Strickland; British Children's Prayer, Wolfe; Land of Hope and Glory, Elgar; aria, O Don Fatale, from the opera "Don Carlos" by Verdi; a Dream, and I Love Thee, by Grieg; My Country, Gretchaninoff; I Know the Lord, arranged by Fisher; O What a Beautiful City arranged by Bostner; Somebody's Knockin' At Your Door, arranged by Fisher and My Good Lord Done Been Here, arranged by Hall Johnson.

The first public meeting of the season of the University Musical Club will be held at 9 p.m. Sunday at Convocation Hall, with Egon Grapentin, violinist, and Mary Drummond Hallen, pianist, as the guest artists. Officials have extended a special invitation to all members of the armed services. Featured will be the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto and Beethoven's Sonata for Violin and Piano, Opus 12, No. 1 Mrs. Hallen will play a group consisting of Chopin's Fantasie, Opus 49 and a transcription of Bach's Little Organ Fugue in G Minor. Other works on the program include Mendelssohn's On Wing's of Song, arranged by Joseph Achron; the March from the opera "The Love of Three oranges," by Prokoliff; Sea Murmurs by Castelnuova-Tedesco, and Sarasate's Zapateado.

The second concert in the current season's Celebrity Series sponsored by the Women's Musical Club will be Nov. 5, with Yehudi Menuhin, violinist as the attraction. While Mrs. Ernest Meaden, manager of the series will be at her office at Heintzman and Company's store each day next week, the sale of "rush" seats for the concert will not open until Nov. 1. One of the outstanding violinists of contemporary times, Mr. Menuhin, already assured of a packed house, undoubtedly will be greeted by "sold right out" signs.

Transfer of the locale of the concerts from the Empire theatre to McDougall Auditorium brought about a considerable upheaval in arrangements and added tremendously to the burden borne by Mrs. Meaden and her assistants. The auditorium has been extensively refurnished for the new season. Seats and floors have been varnished, walls have been re-decorated and the roof has been improved acoustically. The platform has been enlarged and made more attractive.

It was noted that the ingress of the audience at Mona Paulee's concert was achieved far more expeditiously than at the Empire. This, no doubt, was due to the audience making an effort to co-operate, and in determining beforehand the method of etnering. In addition, the previous obtaining of tax saved a line-up and consequently much time. As a rule, the slow ingress of the audience has necessitated a delay up to 15 minutes in the starting of Celebrity Series concerts. That by Mona Paulee was only five minutes late in getting under way.

Mrs. Meaden stated that generally speaking the concert-goers were well pleased with the arrangements, although there were some objections. Nearly every person would have preferred to sit in the centre block of seats. As closely as possible the seating arrangements of the Empire were followed. There are, if memory serves correct, 18 pillars in McDougall Auditorium, and they draw the largest number of adverse remarks, some patrons being unappreciative of the interruption in view.

Nothing is so good that it could not have been improved upon. From the latest swing number to a Wagnerian music drama or a Beethoven symphony there could be a closer proximity to perfection. And every concert hall from the "woodshed" where the lyro orchestra practices to Carnegie Hall, New York, generally conceded to be as excellent a hall as there is for concerts, could be improved. With the Empire theatre unavailable, due to the exigincies and necessities of the war effort, we are fortunate that there is such a place as McDougall Auditorium, even though it has shortcomings as a concert hall. Otherwise the Celebrity Series would be lost "for the duration"—and that would be a blow to our musical life.

Producer

J. Laurier Picard, producer of "The Firefly," which the Edmonton Civic Opera Society will present at the Strand theatre on Nov. 16, 17 and 18. His work in producing "Florodora" last year stood out prominently, and it is reported that "The Firefly" will set a new high standard.

Contralto Will Sing Here

Portia White, Negro contralto, who will give concerts at First Baptist church on Oct. 26 and 27, under the auspices of the church's Women's Mission Circle. It will be her debut here.

Evans was a director of the Bell Telephone system of Canada.

C.C.F. Withdrawal From Coalition In Man. Approved

WINNIPEG, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Withdrawal of C.C.F. support from the Manitoba coalition government was endorsed at the annual convention yesterday of the Manitoba branch of the party.

The C.C.F. withdrew support last December when John Bracken, then premier of Manitoba, announced he would accept leadership of the Progressive Conservative party.

Lloyd C. Stinson of Winnipeg, provincial secretary, told the convention that there had been a "rapid increase" in membership.

The Manitoba section, he said, now had 3,124 paid members, compared with 667 at the end of 1942.

Record Bomb Load Dropped on Japs

By OLEN CLEMENTS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Allied bombers dropped a record single day's load of 221 tons of bombs on the Japanese jungle strong point 15 miles northwest of Finschhafen from which the enemy is striving to hack a path of escape to the New Guinea coast, a headquarters spokesman said today.

This aerial assault was directed at the Sateelberg Mission area where the Japanese in considerable force are attempting to evade the peril presented by Australian forces on two sides.

The resultant explosions and fires virtually levelled the enemy-occupied area.

Reinforcements which the Japanese painstakingly had moved from the north through the jungles were hit heavily by the raid, made in daylight by a considerable force of heavy bombers.

Dafoe Honored On 60th Anniversary In Journalism

west rebellion, which had seemed of only local consequence, resulted eventually in the fall of a government which had seemed impregnable. For though the Conservatives remained in power as long as they had Sir John Macdonald, his death in 1891 was the beginning of the end. Addressing an enthusiastic meeting in the old Windsor hall in January, 1895, Laurier, as he began his address in an auditorium jammed to the doors, said: 'Can this be Tory Montreal?' Hon. Wm. Paterson, commonly known as Billy, uncle of W. P. Davies, of the Grand Forkes Herald, who is in the audience tonight, was a speaker at that Montreal meeting, and another speaker was Duncan Fraser, father of Allister Fraser, of the Canadian National, who is also here."

Parliament

Reverting to his choice of Journalism as a life vocation, Dr. Dafoe said: "Opportunity has been kind to me, and has always seemed to open a door when I wanted to go through. When in 1901, Sir Clifford Sifton, who had acquired control of the Free Press, asked me to take charge, it took me about the millionth part of a second to decide. I remember Sir Clifford saying that, in being a newspaper editor, he thought I had it over cabinet ministers. But that was one ambition that never crossed my mind—the ambition to be a member of parliament. The applause of listening senates to command had no special attraction for me."

Special brilliance in editorial writing was, Dr. Dafoe said, the feature of the earlier days when George Brown had the Toronto Globe and it was the custom of each politician to have his newspaper. "Such newspapers frequently did not mean much from a news point of view, but they were marked by very well-written editorials. The best brains of the day went into editorial writing. I remember Sir John Willison saying, as he turned over old copies of the Globe, that he was astonished at the ability sown.

Party Newspapers

"Those were the happy days of party newspapers when it was said, not only here but in England, that

'Every boy or girl that is born in the world alive
Is either a little Liberal or a little Conservative!'

Of friends who had the newspaper leaning, the speaker recalled particularly P. D. Ross. "Phil Ross had taken a degree in engineering and had got a nice job on the harbor board when he thought he would like to be a newspaperman. He came to Hugh Graham for a job. Mr. Graham said, 'Well, you know we are very poor; we cannot pay much.' Ross said, 'What can you pay?' Mr. Graham answered, 'Five dollars a week.' Ross said: 'I will be around Monday morning. P.D. started four years before I did, and on an even lower salary. He got $5 a week and I got $6 a week. By rights, Mr. Ross should be regarded as the dean of journalism in Canada."

Among old Free Press associates, Dr. Dafoe referred to Walter F. Payne, member of the Free Press staff and of the executive, from 1881 to 1930; "I first met Walter Payne away back in the eighties. He was my chief then." Continuing, the speaker said: "I have always been interested in young men." He told of his first meeting with Grant Dexter. Free Press correspondent at Ottawa, and with George V. Ferguson, now managing editor of the Free Press.

"Among young men I had met in much earlier days was one by the name of Winston Churchill. It was at the Imperial Press conference. We had some great speakers, but when Churchill came to talk to us, he was best of all. I want to say deliberately that I think Winston Churchill is the greatest man the race has produced for a thousand years. And to think that for years in England there were leaders that kept Churchill in the doghouse!

"I may recall that when George Ferguson made his trip to England shortly before the war, he asked the Labor leaders who were opposed to the government why they did not unite behind Churchill. They scouted the idea.

Nearing the end of his address, Dr. Dafoe said: "Since the years began to accumulate, I have been reading variously on the mystery of old age. Last year a friend of mine in New York, then in his 91st year, sent me an anthology on age in cluding Cicero's famous essay, Charles Lamb's article on The Superannuated Man and other literature of the same kind.

"Landor, in one of his poems, says that old age frees man from hopes and fears—'one vile, the other vain.' That however is not true for the individual whose interests extend beyond himself. Such people have their hopes and fears, not for themselves but for others. Landor also wrote a quatrain on his 79th birthday:

I strove with none, for none was worth my strife;
Nature I loved, and next to Nature, Art;
I warmed both hands before the fire of life;
It sinks, and I am ready to depart.

"The first line of that quatrain was untrue, as far as Landor was concerned, and would be equally untrue as applied to me. The last of the quatrain I can accept if I prefer. But when I come to the fourth line, I switch from Landor to Tennyson, in Ulysses:

How dull it is to pause, to make an end,
To rust unburnished, not to shine
in use,
As if to breathe were life . . .

"But it is the lines at the end of this poem which appeal to me directly, because I can include with myself all my friends in the audience who have reached the age of 70:

We are not now that strength which in old days
Moved earth and heaven; that which we are, we are;
One equal temper of heroic hearts
Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find and not to yield."

War Loan Sunday

CALGARY, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Victory Loan Sunday will be observed in Calgary on October 31, when special messages and prayers will be delivered from the pulpits of all local churches.

HE'S CALLING YOU!

HIS PHONE BOOTH is an advanced observation post under enemy fire. Not the most comfortable place . . . nor the safest . . . and he's not taking time out for a pleasure call. This is business—grim, bloody and determined—it's war.

He's got to get what he wants—and quickly. His life is at stake—your freedom.

You're on the other end of that call. You and your money. Your action can help to get him out of there, speed him on towards Victory. Oh, he'll stick it out—ten hours, ten weeks, ten years if need be. But neither you nor he want any drags on the wheels of Victory. He wants to come home—you want to get this war over. He is doing the fighting—you are merely requested to buy Victory Bonds—just another form of savings for yourself.

SPEED THE VICTORY . . . BUY VICTORY BONDS!

TODAY'S MESSAGE
By REV. J. MacBEATH MILLER, M.A., B.D.
Minister, First Presbyterian Church
Edmonton.

Religion That Has Practical Application

FIVE million Canadian people pray daily or weekly. "Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." God's will is done perfectly in heaven. That is why heaven is heaven.

But in our actual lives here on the earth apparently we make no attempt to make our prayer a reality.

The beginning of the Christian religion is faith in Jesus Christ and His redemptive sacrifice. There follows upon this, however, the necessity to live this faith out in daily, practical affairs.

If each citizen of the United Nations said "I will do my own will. I will resist the will of our nations." That would be treason. Yet many are guilty of just that.

If each of us said "It is the will of our leaders that I should buy Victory Bonds, but I will do what I please," would our cause be maintained?

Yet we are talking about a better life and weekly praying "Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven," and then we go and order our lives to suit ourselves.

Many people feel there is no reality in the Christian profession because they see church people living their lives the way they please.

If Christian people in this nation would ask: What is God's will for this nation? What is God's will about races? What is God's will about languages?

If church members would ask: What is God's will for the branches of the Christian church? What is God's will for me as a baptized Christian?

If the Christian people of Edmonton would ask: What is God's will for this city? for housing? for food? for fuel? for administration? for business? for human relationships?

Religion and effective living meet when people begin to answer their own prayer. The way of life that seeks God's will is a practical program for church, community, nation, for our homes and personal lives. Things that are artificial, that we are defending, affairs in which we are wanting to benefit ourselves, second rate attitudes are revealed when tested by God's will. The search for God's will cuts through formalism, artificial standards, unreal values, and brings us to the destiny God intends for us. "I have lived through everything except life" said one disillusioned man.

Dr. Stanley Jones says "The business of life is to live and live well and adequately and abundantly. But this age knows almost everything about life except how to live life."

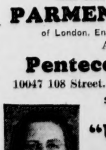

Frank Laubach says "I never lived. I was half dead, I was a rotting tree, until I reached the place where I wholly, with utter honesty, resolved and then re-resolved that I would find God's will and I would do that will though every part in me said no, and I would win the battle in my thoughts."

Let us begin to seek and do God's will as a way of practical living. Let us as leaders and citizens and all who in their hearts long for an order of society which can give peace and righteousness, begin to make the will of God the way of our daily life and we shall find that we have discovered again the secret of abundant, effective and adequate living. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 7:21).

Meet one of Canada's

✻ FIGHTING SONS

✻ FLIGHT-LIEUT. D. P. MacINTYRE, D.F.C., D.F.C. (U.S.)

Canadians, this is one of the men who is fighting for us. He didn't want his own story told, and only consented when we explained that it would help to sell Victory Bonds. Quiet, friendly and unassuming, he wears the ribbons of two Distinguished Flying Crosses side by side—one conferred on him by Great Britain—the other a decoration by the United States of America.

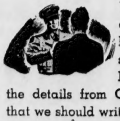

Born and educated in Saint John, N.B., from Public School to the University of New Brunswick, he took up the quiet life of a school teacher. He tried repeatedly to join the R.C.A.F., but he never got past the corporal at the front door. A travelling unit, with a medical examiner, arrived in town one day. They stopped MacIntyre on the street and inquired the way to the recruiting depot. He hopped on the running-board, drove past the corporal, and had his medical then and there.

His biggest thrill came in November, 1941, when his Wing Commander announced they were going to bomb the "Big City" that night . . . they bombed Berlin.

We asked him how he got his citation, but he put the matter off simply as a bit of good luck, and we had to get the details from Ottawa. He suggested that we should write up some of the other boys, "Martin for instance, with 98 trips under his belt."

Young MacIntyre had his adventures over the desert, too, and he got a ribbon from the United States for a job over Benghazi. He didn't want to talk about that, either. But he had some remarks to make about the comradeship of the desert, and the democracy. No ranks or badges except on duty. When the boys line up for grub, they stay in line. If the commander is eighth in line, he is served eighth. Once MacIntyre saw a big shot push ahead. The cook promptly roared, "get into line." The big shot grinned—and did.

Raids. They had plenty of raids. They bombed Hamburg, Ruhr, Essen, and the big Renault works north of Paris. Finally they were shot down in Norway.

After a series of breathtaking experiences that cannot be told now, Lieutenant MacIntyre escaped and found his way back to his own squadron. He got the British D.F.C. for that exploit. He's overseas again now, after a short holiday in Canada.

We asked him what the lads "over there" thought about our Victory Loans. He told us that the men follow any news of these with interest—and lots of them subscribe themselves. Flyers in England and Africa believe there is a very fine effort being put up at home—and that Canadians are really "digging deep" . . . that it was a pretty swell feeling to know that the folks at home were doing a "job."

We who stay behind have a deep and solemn obligation to our men in the armed forces. Our debt to the dead is to carry on the task for which they died—our obligation to the living is to shorten the war, to bring them home sooner. Our privilege, as well as our responsibility, is to "dig deep"—deeper than before—and buy Victory Bonds.

FLIGHT-LIEUTENANT D. P. MacINTYRE'S OFFICIAL CITATION

"One night in April, 1942, Flying Officer MacIntyre and Pilot Officer Hewitt (RAFVR) were captain and navigator, respectively, of an aircraft detailed to carry out a low level attack on the German Naval Base at Trondheim. The target was located and in the face of intense opposition from the enemy's ground defences the attack was pressed home with great coolness and determination from a low level. During this operation the aircraft was hit. The outer portion of the wing caught fire and the fuselage and cockpit were filled with smoke. Soon the aircraft was well alight and as it became uncontrollable, Flying Officer MacIntyre decided to descend on to a lake to which he was directed by Pilot Officer Hewitt. This he achieved by a feat of superb airmanship. The crew then manned their dinghy and made their way to the side of the lake. After a perilous journey and suffering great hardships, Flying Officer MacIntyre and his crew eventually reached England. The greatest credit is due to both these officers for their calm efficiency and courageous devotion to duty."

50,000 Witness City's Greatest Military Parade

tyranny was the emblem of the land of the Maple Leaf, the Canadian flag.

The great parade moved along with the snap and precision of a perfectly-fitted mechanism.

VETERANS MARCH SMARTLY

Bemedalled, graying veterans of the last great struggle against German tyranny, marched with the springy step of 25 years back. Khaki of the army representatives of both Canada and the United States; the deep blue of Canada's young and fighting navy, and the lighter blues of the warriors of the skies, contrasted in picturesque fashion with civilian representatives of many of the United Nations in striking native costumes.

There were the purring reminders that this is largely a mechanized war in the dull grayish-green trucks, jeeps, universal carriers, ambulances and other fighting machines on wheels.

A complete airplane, towed by a chugging tractor, and a plane engine, also on a tow line, with long columns of whitecoat war plant workers laid further emphasis on the mechanized nature of the struggle.

That total war involves women as well as men was stressed by the smart, trim company of Canadian girls clad in the khaki of the Canadian Women's Army Corps and the two magnificently-trained bands, brass and pipe, that presented a striking picture in the long procession.

NUMEROUS BANDS

Nearly a dozen bands, brass, pipe, bugle, and one fife and drum, provided stirring martial accompaniment for the marching thousands.

A huge fireworks piece, forming the characters in "V Victory Loan," blazed atop the Hudson's Bay Co. department store at 103 street and Jasper Avenue.

From a raised platform at 101 street and Jasper Avenue, one of Western Canada's veteran soldiers took the salute.

It seemed fitting that Edmonton's greatest parade should be reviewed by the original commanding officer of a great fighting Edmonton infantry unit, Maj.-Gen. W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., who led the fighting 49th Bn. C.E.F. into action on the Western Front in the First Great War. The perpetuating unit, The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, is now bringing new glory and honor to the name of this city in far away Italy.

With General Griesbach on the reviewing stand were: Group Capt. R. M. Smith, commanding officer at No. 2 "M" depot, in charge of military organizations participating in the parade; Lt.-Col. Alan Elliott, M.D. area commandant; Lt.-Col. E. H. Strickland, commanding officer of Wetaskiwin Army Training Centre, Lt.-Cmdr. K. A. Mackenzie, acting commanding officer of H.M.C.S. Nonsuch; Col. W. F. W. Hancock, assistant commissioner of the R.C.M.P. in Western Canada; Wing Cmdr. E. G. Macpherson, commanding officer at No. 4 I.T.S. R.C.A.F.; Col. Eugene Stevens, officer commanding Edmonton air base, U.S.A.A.F.; H. M. E. Evans and R. A. Staples, officials for the north Alberta area in Canada's Fifth Victory Loan, and Robert English, United States consular representative.

GREAT DEMONSTRATION

It was indeed a visual and audible demonstration of military might that the reviewing officer looked upon.

There were the sputtering motorcycles of the pilot squad of city police that led the entire procession, followed by the motorized cavalcade of nations driven by U.S. soldiers in the new coal-scuttled steel helmets. More soldiers carrying rifles, sailors with rifles and fixed bayonets and additional soldiers, and airmen with rifles at the slope and bayonets gleaming followed.

The parade started sharply at the appointed time of 8:30 p.m. from the intersection of 106 street and Jasper avenue. Plans had been so well made there was scarcely and sign of confusion in getting each unit in its appointed place in the procession.

Bursting aerial bombs signalled the start and red, white and green flares, blazed along the line of march as the parade started eastward.

Directly behind the city police pilots and the beflagged jeeps of the United Nations, at the head of the marching men, came the pipe band of Edmonton Branch No. 24 of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., under the direction of Pipe Major John Lang. Other parties of various city war veteran bodies were next.

Marching with the snap of rookie soldiers came the North and South Edmonton battalions of the Veterans' Volunteer Reserve, wearing battleship gray wedge caps. As a majority of men in these battalions fought in the First Great War, medals gleamed on almost every chest.

CANADIAN CORPS VETERANS

Among the most colorful bodies of veterans in the parade were the men of the Canadian Corps in their vividly-colored berets, representing the four divisions of the immortal Canadian Corps that formed the bright spearhead of the Allied armies in the last Great War.

These men won deserved cheers as they swung along. The Canadian Legion representation, with their colors proudly tossing in front, followed next and these decorated veterans of the former struggle against Germany were also roundly cheered as they marched.

Brass band of the 2nd Reserve Bn. of the Edmonton Fusiliers came next, and then came helmeted soldiers of the U.S. Army. Old Glory fluttering proudly in front. A smart squad of military police, wearing white gloves and side arms, presented a novel sight to Edmontonians. Then came more U.S. troops from the air force, carrying rifles and men from the Engineers, their regimental colors flying in front. Popular here, both as friends and allies, the American troops were loudly applauded.

As smart as anything in the parade were the men of the Royal Canadian Navy, with the mascot bulldog "Churchill" trotting along in the front row seemingly proudly enjoying the experience.

Edmonton Sea Cadet Corps, headed by the fine bugle band, came next and the salts-to-be looked just about as fit as their elder brothers.

The crowd increased the applause for the next group, the visiting C.W.A.C. pipe band. The feminine bagpipers not only looked good but they played the airs of Auld Scotia with a know-how that astounded their huge audience.

GIRLS APPLAUDED

Edmonton company of the C.W.A.C. followed and there was more deserved applause for the smartly marching girls in khaki.

Then came several Edmonton Reserve Army units, swinging along in full battle array with the steadiness of veteran campaigners.

The bugle band from the Wetaskiwin training centre provided marching tempo for the Reserve Army groups that included motorized artillery units of the 61st Reserve Bty., R.C.A., R.C.A.S.C. and the R.C.O.C. base depot.

Grimly business-like in steel helmets and other battle equipment, were the two Edmonton Reserve Army infantry battalions, 2nd Bn. Edmonton Fusiliers and the 2nd Bn. of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment.

Other army units participating included: 4th Div. Pro. Armored Troop Coy, R.C.A.S.C. No. 1 (R) Army Ordnance; E. Troop Signals, (R).

In addition, regimental band of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, the brass band from Wetaskiwin Army Training Centre and the bugle band of the 2nd. (R) Bn. Edmonton Fusiliers were spaced at intervals in the march. There were also a number of mobile units, including Bren Universal Carriers, a mobile radio truck, a hospital truck with a soldier on a stretcher undergoing an "operation," trucks carrying "wounded" with arm and head injuries, and a red cross blood donors' car.

MANY AIRMEN PARADE

Airmen from city training establishments that have already shattered many records in Victory Loan purchases, marched smartly after the khaki-clad army troops.

There were long columns from No. 4 I.T.S. that leads all Canadian air force establishments by more than doubling its quota of bond purchases; from No. 3 Edmonton "M" depot, from the University air training class, with red cap flashes, and from No. 2 A.O.S. Several squads of Australians in deep blue, marched with No. 2 A.O.S. and No. 3 "M" depot.

The future warriors of the skies received cheers all along the route of march. The precision squad from No. 3 "M" depot, in white belts and carrying bayonet-ed rifles, presented a picture of well trained precision.

Bands of No. 4 I.T.S. and No. 3 "M" depot performed in their usually brilliant manner.

Edmonton Squadrons of the Air Cadets of Canada were just about as impressive in their full-fledged brothers, and their own bugle and fife band helped them along with stirring music.

Aircraft Repair Ltd. floats of the one thousandth bomber and 1,500th engine reconditioned at the plant were attractive novel features. Employees of the aircraft firm, both men and women, were applauded as they marched, each carrying a small Union Jack.

PICTURESQUE DISPLAY

Allied nations were represented in picturesque native costumes from the following countries:

Soviet Union, China, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Norway and Free France.

China and the Soviet Union had lavish representation and were roundly acclaimed as were the others.

Legion of Frontiersmen were at the end of Edmonton's longest parade.

Parade Marshal John Michaels and Group Capt. R. M. Smith, and all others who assisted them in planning and organizing Edmonton's great Victory Loan parade, have reason to feel proud of a big job well done.

Ottawa Gun Plant Stops Production

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Manufacture of the Vickers .5 machine gun at Ottawa Car and Aircraft Ltd., one of Ottawa's few large factories devoted to production of arms, was discontinued yesterday and some 1,800 employees were out of work. Officials of National Selective Service will be at the plant on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday to make arrangements to facilitate the transfer of employees to other firms.

Price Increase For Hogs Asked Of Government

CALGARY, Oct. 23—Immediate action by the federal government to increase prices for hogs and cattle is necessary to avoid sharp decreases in production, declared the executive of the United Farmers of Alberta, yesterday, in three telegrams sent to Hon. J. G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture.

The wires were sent by Robert Gardiner, U.F.A. president, after a meeting of the executive here. The full executives of the U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. will meet Monday to complete arrangements for the annual convention to be held in Calgary next January.

TEXT OF TELEGRAMS

The telegrams, sent to the minister of agriculture were as follows:

1—"Delay in announcing the terms of the new bacon agreement with Great Britain and absence of any government policy providing for increases in the price of hogs, is forcing farmers to sell large numbers of breeding stock.

Farmers state they cannot continue to produce prime bacon hogs at present prices. Inquiries at local abattoirs show that a large percentage of sows coming to market are in pig, indicating that farmers intended to keep up their breeding stock, but were forced to change their policy because there was no indication of higher prices to meet increased costs of production."

2—"The U.F.A. strongly protests the small increase of 75 cents a hundredweight over the existing contract price for hogs as being insufficient. Increased costs of production make it necessary for farmers to receive at least 20 cents per pound for bacon hogs. The U.F.A. suggests that the government reconsider the agreement or bonus hog production."

COSTS INCREASED

3—"Owing to increased costs of delivery and shortage of labor at the packing plants, cattle prices are steadily working lower. If the present standard of production is required, immediate action on the part of the government to stop the decline of prices is essential. The producers require at least 12 cents per pound for prime steers to cover the cost of production."

Lift Restrictions On Winter Wheat

Air Navigation Invention Wins Award of $300

SAN DIEGO, Calif, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Devising an instrument to assure greater accuracy in the navigation of Liberator bombers won the top award of $300 yesterday for Don L. Wilson, Omaha, Neb., and Harold Frederick of Calgary, employees of Consolidated-Vultee Aircraft Corporation. The company said by use of the instrument, one person could do the work in shorter time which formerly required three or more employees.

Italian Composer Is Given Refuge In Vatican City

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Pietro Mascagni, 79, Italian composer whose opera Cavalleria Rusticana lifted him from abject poverty in 1890, has been given a haven in Vatican City, a Zurich dispatch to the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said yesterday. The newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said Count Galleazzo Ciano, former Fascist foreign minister, is being held by an anti-Fascist group in the mountains of central Italy.

Airman Describes Nazi Glider Bomb

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A description of Germany's new radio-controlled glider bomb, as given by a United States army officer who saw it in action when Nazi bombers tried to attack Ajaccio, Corsica, was reported by George Hirks, Blue Network Algiers correspondent.

Hicks quoted Capt. E. Quigley, French liaison officer for United States forces in Corsica, as saying that French interceptors shot down six and blocked all but one the other Nazi planes, and adding:

"Suddenly I saw what looked like a small Spitfire turning in a slow glide away from the Nazi bomber. It had wings, a tail and seemingly rocket propulsion—because fire was coming from the tail-pieces.

"It curved and swooped lower, seemingly dodging a landing craft that had left a cargo ship and headed for shore. It neared the landing craft and exploded near the bow of the boat."

Hicks said that "Allied forces have prepared methods for counter-attacking it."

Errand for Q-74

By MALCOM TAYLOR

THE STORY: Capt. Raymond Imhof, Q-74, U.S. Army Intelligence, has been assigned to follow clew-trail of Enzell, Q-46, leading to certain important information which Enzell has been unable to bring out of Germany. The plane from which Imhof was to parachute into enemy territory is forced down. He discovers the pilot is a girl. They make their way toward Hoppard where they find the first clew.

CHAPTER XV

"WHAT is it?" asked Pat, on tenterhooks.

"Say Jan in German," replied Imhof.

"Yan," said Pat, mystified. "Don't tease. Do explain!"

"Am explaining," said Imhof. "And K in English is pronounced Kay. And Stolz is German for pride. Yankee Pride—Pride of the Yankees—Lou Gehrig—famous first baseman of the New York Yankees. All double-Dutch to you, I guess, but I can't explain now. I should have tumbled long ago. You see the game?"

Pat did.

"I become L. Gehrig in Bingen and get Enzell's letter, telling me what next. The Gestapo will certainly have read it, like every other letter in the Poste Restante, but Enzell will have seen that there's no clew in it for them. Also he'll have written a letter to Stolz in some unsolvable cipher for them to break their heads on."

He hastened on as if Bingen was around the next curve and the postoffice about to close for a week. But not for long. "You're dead beat," he said to Pat contritely. "I'm sorry."

The rest of the night they spent in a vineyard shed. Weariness overcoming discomfort, they slept well, but got off to an early start in the morning, and thanks to a lift by an obliging lighter captain towing a string of barges upstream, reached Bingen along with other refugee passengers in the late afternoon.

Confident though he was of getting the Gehrig letter easily, Imhof nevertheless prepared identification for himself in the name of Gariger before seeking the postoffice.

"Gehrig," he said boldly, stressing the final "g" so it was almost a "ger." Although there was a Gestapo man in the office, the Gehrig letter was handed over without hesitation on proof of identity being given. Imhof opened and read it on the spot, noting how different the writing was from the Zellen script. It was headed Wiesbaden and read:

Dear Ludo:

Ha, ha! I was right about that passage in Beethoven you would argue about with me. It is in Simrock's edition! I looked is up the other day in the public library. So you owe me the two marks, don't forget, that you bet. You can pay me when you come back, but I wanted you to know I was right.

Triumphantly,

Erich.

"Now what the deuce does Enzell mean?" Imhof exclaimed to Pat later. They had left Bingen, crossed the Rhine and were making for Wiesbaden.

Pat whistled the notes and did not find the progression pleasing. "Doesn't sound like Beethoven to me. But there's a Simrock's edition of his works all right. I used to toil over it when I took piano lessons."

"Only Simrock I know of," Imhof grumbled, "is Karl Joseph, German philologist. I used to use his translation of the Icelandic Eddas as a crib."

"Ray!" Pat screamed. "The letter! Can you read the musical notes?"

"E, E, D, D," he began. A grin of delight interrupted him. "Edda! You genius! Do you know what headache this saves me? I was going to the Wiesbaden library—that hint was obvious—but I'd have fooled around for days over Beethoven before trying the Simrocks."

Towards sundown he looked at her questioningly. "Too tired to push on a bit before we fold up?" He was anxious to shorten the morrow's trip to Wiesbaden.

"Not a bit," she said gamely, quickening her steps to convince him.

But they soon received an unexpected check. Rounding a bend in the road, they were halted at the rifle's point of a small body of armed police.

"Road closed," the leader said. "Why? What's up?" Imhof, annoyed and puzzled, incautiously demanded.

"Back, and no questions!" he was bidden agrib. Pat plucked his sleeve and they retreated.

"I'm not going to be held up like this," said Imhof soon, his jaw squaring. "We'll strike inland and find a road in the hills going east."

He led the way and in the gathering dark they gained the top of the ridge, but found no trace of a road. Not to be gainsaid, they turned east along the ridge through the woods in the moonlight. The going was not easy but they made some mileage before Imhof, eyeing Pat's face pale from more than the moonlight, pronounced, "You've had enough!" and pulled up at the edge of a clearing.

She forced a smile and sat down wearily. "I'll go on after a bite and a breather." But she did not. After they had eaten, she stretched herself to rest a while, but presently, almost in the middle of a sentence, fell asleep.

Imhof lay back, thinking of Wiesbaden and the morrow, then himself drifted off.

Soviet Withdrawal Out of Turkestan Claimed by Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Soviet Russia has withdrawn "from the heartland of Asia" — China's great interior province of Sinkiang, or Turkestan — and the Chinese government has reassumed full authority there, a Time magazine correspondent reports in the current issue.

Theodore White, Time's Chungking correspondent, tells of this change, "a diplomatic feat as great as any in Chinese history," after returning from the first visit to that little-known territory by a foreign journalist in many years.

Sinkiang had been under Soviet influence from 1934 to 1942, when Chinese diplomacy began working to recover full authority.

CURIOUS WORLD

Answer: Julius Caesar changed Quintilis to July, in honor of himself. Augustus Caesar changed Sextilis to August.

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters, use that color.)

Upon a dark GREEN mossy bank beneath a tall GRAY (use BLACK lightly) trunked maple tree, the leaves gave a dance. The Acorn elf came down from the tall oak tree and wore a cape of RED and BROWN and an acorn cap of GREEN. His arms and legs were clothed in BROWN and he danced most wonderfully so they say.

The Maple fairy with light GREEN maple wings and a flaming RED skirt danced with the Acorn elf. Her arms and legs were bright YELLOW like her hair and she wore tiny RED slippers on her dainty feet.

The YELLOW beech sprite sitting crossed-legged on a big RED mushroom clapped the dancers vigorously. The beech sprite had GREEN hair, legs and arms.

For music they hired the RED dotted bug you see in the picture, the dots are on a BLACK background and the bug is beating a YELLOW toadstool drum, with two BROWN batons. The underside of the toadstool is BROWN, and the underside of the mushroom is YELLOW, so is its stem.

The bug's eyes are BLUE and his head is RED; the Elf, Fairy and Sprite all have PINK (use RED lightly) cheeks.

Paint the border of this picture BROWN and let it go up behind the lettering that can be colored RED and YELLOW.

Two City Guide Companies Win Book Competition

The 10th Edmonton Company and 21st Edmonton Pack Girl Guides were winners of the Guest Book competition held in connection with the Edmonton Guide Day at the Hudson's Bay Company store, Oct. 9. At that time the Guides and Brownies had the use of one of the store's big show windows in which they displayed toys and other work which they had completed for overseas and the Red Cross Superfluity shop. Photographs of the recent inspection of Her Royal Highness, Princess Alice, and of ranger training, were also on display.

The Lethbridge Guides were responsible for a 12 minute radio program in that city recently. The program was presented as part of the Lethbridge Community Chest drive.

Girl Scouts of America Girl Guides in Canada have started the exchange of trans-Atlantic scrapbooks. Their books are made by Brownie and Scout Troops and show all their group doings, and also tell about the girls themselves and how they live.

Overseas Guides have filled another need which came with war conditions. Many medicines and necessary drugs, formerly imported, were recently not obtainable. A supply, in many cases, could be obtained from home grown plants, so Guides and Brownies gathered the proper leaves, and dried them with the help of Rangers. The herbs were then turned over to the chemist to extract the drug they contain.

Nation's Interest In Janey Canuck to Continue After War

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—(CP)—When Airwoman Janey Canuck comes marching home from service in the R.C.A.F. Women's Division she'll find that the nation's interest in her well-being doesn't end when her discharge certificate is handed to her.

The R.C.A.F. announced recently in a press release, that the defence department will give her money to help her buy new "civvies", pay for 30 days after discharge if she has been in uniform six months or more and a ticket back home or to where she enlisted, whichever is nearest.

What's more, she can go back to the job she left to enlist, or one equal to it, if she asks her employer within three months after discharge, had been working there at least three months before she enlisted, and is still capable of carrying on the work.

If she works at least 15 weeks in insurable employment, and then finds herself unemployed, the department of pensions and national health will contribute on her behalf to the unemployment insurance for her period of service between July 1, 1941, and the date of discharge. Thus, she will have more credits on which to draw than the 15 or more weeks of contributions made since her discharge.

Shot of a Shirt Finds Lost Son

PERTH, Aus., Oct. 23.—(CP)—Notification had been made that a few of the internees in a camp in Manila would be repatriated and for one of them, Miss Frances Long of New York, several of those who were to remain wrote their signatures on a shirt by way of a souvenir.

In due time Miss Long reached home, was interviewed and photographed and a picture of the shirt incorporated in a newsreel.

A long time afterwards, Mrs. Lily Barnard of Claremont, Western Australia, decided that she would go to the pictures. She had not been for six years and she thought it was time she had a night out.

The newsreels were interesting. One showed a shirt which had been autographed in Manila and taken to New York.

In the second or two of that flash she had recognized the signature of one of her sons and a check-up with Miss Long proved that he was in the camp she had left.

Previously Mrs. Barnard had heard a man singing over the radio. She recognized the voice and in this way she traced another missing son.

Want Princess To Mix More

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Suggestions that Princess Elizabeth should be given more opportunity of mixing with the public and other young men and women of her age have been made in the house of commons.

The subject came up Tuesday during the second reading of the regency bill to allow the princess to become a councellor of state when she reaches the age of 18 next year instead of waiting until she is 21.

Arthur Greenwood, Labor member, proposed that her education should be conducted in association and co-operation with others of her own age "so that she might fulfill her responsibilities with knowledge and experience of life."

"It is the desire of the King and Queen that Princess Elizabeth should have every opportunity of gaining experience in the duties which would fall on her in the event of her accession to the throne, said Herbert Stanley Morrison, home secretary, speaking for the government.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Patched Up Marriages Show Permanent Cracks

Youthful Ideals Trampled Into Mire When Husband, Wife Become Unfaithful and Forget Feelings

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a member of a profession in which a man needs to have peace of mind and heart. I was successful until a short time ago when my wife had a love affair with another man. I broke it up, but it broke me up, too, and I was so miserable I went to another woman for consolation. But I was not made for the double life and I became so disgusted with my own conduct that I repented and confessed everything to my wife. I expected forgiveness, but she became very bitter towards me and my life is very unhappy.

I have left the city I lived in and located in another place, but I have little heart for my work or interest in it. Do my wife and I have much chance for happiness together now? We have several children. DISILLUSIONED.

Answer: After a husband and wife have been unfaithful to each other they naturally cannot have the same sort of married happiness that they had before when they trusted each other. They have been disillusioned, disappointed. Their ideals have been trampled into the mire. Their slabaster vase has been shattered and, no matter how they patch it up, the cracks are still there and the mended place show.

But, it seems to me, that it should be easier for two sinners to forgive each other than it would be if one had been faultless and the other a betrayer. It must be hard for saints to ever understand sinners, or for the strong to sympathize with the weak, or for the full-fed to be able to excuse the starving for stealing bread.

The austere souls who have never felt any temptation cannot comprehend why everyone does not walk the straight and narrow path as they do. It is only those who are the victims of their own passions and emotions and impulses who know how easy it is to stray into the primrose path when one is lonely or depressed, or perhaps only so tired of the monotony of a humdrum life that they crave excitement, as a drunkard does drink.

So, this being the case and you and your wife both being weaklings who have fallen into the same pit, why cannot you forgive each other and wipe your slate off and make a fresh beginning? And perhaps because of your knowledge of your common frailty you may be drawn closer together.

You remember in Barrie's lovely little play "The Twelve Pound Look" how the wife who has left her home and to go and live among poor, common people says: "And they say 'poor soul' to me and I say 'poor soul' to them, and we are happy together."

So my advice to you is to pull yourself together. Quit thinking about your nerves and whether you are happy or not and plunge into your work so you will not have too much time to think. And not only forgive your wife, but forget, and make a happy, cheerful home for your children.

DOROTHY DIX.

OLD LOVE LETTERS

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it bad luck to keep old love letters? I have quite a collection and I wouldn't want to get rid of them because I love to read them over once in a while. LOU.

Answer: It is the worst possible luck to keep old love letters. They will hoodoo practically any marriage, so take my advice and make a bonfire of them and every other sentimental trifle that you have, including all of your old beaux' photographs.

Of course, women hate like the mischief to do this, because their old love letters are a tie that binds them to their youth and when they get them out and read them they feel that they are slim young girls again instead of fat, middle-aged women. And it is a solace when their husbands are growing over the bills to know that there was one once who told them that they were the most beautiful and wonderful creatures on earth and that he would give them the moon if they wanted it, and that they have the written words to prove it!

But, all the same, the little packets of yellow old letters tied up in faded blue ribbon can wreck a home as surely as a dynamite bomb, because when a married woman takes to reading them she begins to sentimentalize over her old sweetheart and wish she had married him.

And, anyway, it isn't fair to the men to keep their old love letters, for they have long ago forgotten that they were ever guilty of such foolishness as writing such slush.

DOROTHY DIX.

WANTS TO ADOPT

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I are in our late forties. We have reared our family and made a good job of it and they are all fine men and women. But now they are married, with homes of their own, scattered about in different cities, and we are by ourselves and lonesome.

Now we both love babies and we would like to adopt a little girl. I would like to have one who has no know in life and who I could make into a good woman by God's help, and who would bring happiness to us, too. Do you think it would be advisable for us to adopt a child at our time of life? So many tell us not to do it. A. M. H.

Answer: I can see no reason why you should not do so, unless it is because of the age factor, but, after all, healthy people in their late forties have a long enough expectation of life to cover the rearing of a child. And if, by fortunately, you should die before the little girl is grown, no doubt one of your good daughters would take her and mother her in your place.

I do not think that there is any finer, nobler work that anybody can do than to take a little motherless, homeless, friendless baby and give it the love and tenderness it has missed, and a chance to develop into a fine personality.

So if you want your baby girl, take her, and God bless you both.

DOROTHY DIX.

Debunker

The general belief that the "keystone" is a modern idea in constructing buildings has been thrown over by the discoveries made by Dr. Alfonso Caso while excavating Mayan tombs in Mexico. Here he found that these early Indians had discovered the keystone, and had used it in tombs. A perfect specimen was excavated at Monte Alban. The idea seems to have been lost by later generations, and was never used again till the white man came and reintroduced it.

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Mother: "I'm glad you told me the truth about taking a dime from Gandmother's purse to buy candy. The next step is for you to tell Grandmother and pay her back from your own money."

Mother: "As a reward for telling me the truth about the money you took from Grandmother's purse, I'll give you the money to pay her back and we'll slip it in her purse before she misses it."

Telling the truth should not exempt a child from making reparation for a misdeed.

What To Do

I plan to entertain a close friend at a shower. I would like to surprise her, and would also like to include our husbands and her fiance at the party. Have you any suggestions?

Answer — Invite your women friends to the shower at eight, and their husbands at ten. This will give you two hours for the presentation of gifts and accompanying conversation.'

Your women friends could send on their gifts to you in advance if you have any special presentation in mind. They should be asked to meet at some central point and arrive together to surprise your friend.'

At ten, when the men arrive, you can have dancing or cards and refreshments, and wind up the affair with a truly gala time.

McCoy Health Service

Neuritis is a disorder affecting the nerves which in severe cases is capable of inducing marked pain, described by the patient as cutting, boring, darting, or stabbing. Because there may be no outer sign of the extremely painful inner sensation, the patient may find little sympathy from those nearby, and yet he may be experiencing a pain so agonizing that he is unable to think of anything else.

While there have been many theories advanced as to the probable cause of neuritis, I consider that the most important cause is a toxic condition of the body. When the poisons developed from faulty habits of living collect around a nerve or nerves, they set up sufficient irritation to produce the pain characteristic of neuritis. The toxins which do the damage often come from an intestinal toxemia.

The poisons causing neuritis are very similar to those producing rheumatism—the chief difference lies in the accumulation around a muscle, they induce muscular rheumatism, but if they become around a nerve, the resulting effect is called neuritis.

Another possible cause of neuritis is an improper diet. When the food habitually eaten is not of the right kind, the blood lacks those vital elements needed to nourish the nerves properly. The nerves then become more easily irritated than might be the case if they were properly fed.

One of the substances which may be lacking and have a direct effect upon the nerves by its absence, is Vitamin B1 as this particular vitamin is a necessity if the nerves are to remain healthy. However, this does not mean that adding the diet may be supplying enough of this vitamin and at the same time, the nerves may not be getting the benefit. This is often caused some intestinal condition is preventing the vitamin from being assimilated properly. Intestinal disturbances are probably more responsible for producing the various forms of neuritis than simple lack of vitamin B1.

Some of the secondary or contributing causes of neuritis are abscessed teeth, sick tonsils, and sinus trouble. Such focal infections may not be causing any part of themselves but the poisons obtained from them may be carried through the system until they affect some nerve or group of nerves. Other contributing causes are the aftereffects of a severe cold or lead.

The chief thing to keep in mind is that the presence in the bloodstream of irritating poisons is the fundamental cause of neuritis. When the patient realizes this, it is not so difficult for him to realize that ultimate relief depends mainly upon the removal of such waste materials. For permanent relief the patient must depend upon cleasing the body of accumulated toxins, upon using the right diet, and upon keeping the intestinal tract clean. While the application of heat will usually provide temporary relief from the pain of neuritis, the source is not enough to bring lasting help.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

McKenney On Bridge

America's Card Authority

After getting yesterday's hand, in which Lee Hazen admitted all the mistakes, I pulled up a chair and kibitzed him in another rubber in which he played today's hand.

South made the opening lead with the ace of diamonds and played the queen of hearts. You can see that the declarer has three spade tricks, two diamonds and a club trick, and if he can get three heart tricks, his contract is safe. If Hazen had taken the first heart trick, declarer would be able to establish the hearts by playing the eight-spot, overtaking with dummy's ace, East won with the jack, dummy would have the ace of spades as a re-entry. But Hazen refused to win the queen of hearts.

War Kitchen

By GAYNOR MADDOX

George Sebastian, noted orchestra conductor, picked up this recipe for herring with dressing from a Russian fisherman who enjoyed Mr. Sebastian's music when he conducted the Moscow Philharmonic Orchestra.

HERRING WITH DRESSING

Herring, 1 onion, 1 sour apple, pepper, sugar, half a roll or the heel of a loaf of bread

Soak herring overnight, changing water occasionally. Before soaking prepare herring by removing skin and bones. Chop fine. Chop onion and apple. Combine chopped herring, apple, onion, pepper to taste, and the roll which has been soaked in vinegar and water. Stir in one whole egg and the white of another.

Mix all well and place in fish dish. Then mix together the yolk of an egg, a little sugar and vinegar. Beat well then spread over the fish.

That's one way to prepare untrained herring. Here's another which Mr. Sebastian rates high

JELLIED HERRING

Two pounds herring, 3 glasses water, 1 cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon peppercorns, 1 bay leaf, 2 large onions, sliced

Clean and fillet herring and simmer for 30 minutes. Drain. Remove skin and bones from fish and chop. Strain stock carefully. Arrange chopped fish in large bowl and pour fish stock over it. Place in refrigerator until it jells

Monday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Prune Juice, ready-to-eat corn cereal, raisin toast, butter, coffee, milk

LUNCHEON: Herring with dressing, hot boiled potatoes, sliced tomatoes with chopped parsley, gingerbread, tea, milk

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

All mothers ought to be more flexible about allowing the baby to initiate changes in its feeding program. Unless one is alert to the behavior indicative of the need for change, this cannot come about.

For instance, many mothers tell me the baby would sleep longer in the morning if they would let him. But that 6 o'clock feeding seems sacred to them so they waken the baby, put the bottle in mouth and consider they have done the right thing.

They have to stop that 6 a.m. bottle —or any bottle—is when the baby stops waking for it!

Mrs. W. says she is afraid to let the baby sleep as she thinks her too young, at six months, to go without the 6 a.m. feeding.

"She weighs 21½ pounds (a year-old weight) and is fine and healthy. She has 8 ounces of milk at 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. In addition to this she has 2 to 3 tablespoons of cereal, a can of baby vegetables, fruit or custard, orange juice and cod liver oil. She doesn't drink much milk at these meals at which she gets solid food, but sometimes drinks some fresh fruit by cup

"She doesn't like egg and spits it out. Is there anything I can give her which has the same nourishment as egg? She is a very good baby and seldom cries. Will you give me a schedule for her up to the time she has three meals a day?"

She is ready for three meals now. She is showing all the signs indicative of the fact that there is no difference to four bottles of milk and a tendency to sleep later in the morning.

It doesn't pay to force eggs on a child who has any sensitivity to them. If you are sure it isn't just the form in which you are giving eggs that is displeasing to the child, then omit them altogether. You can use the other complete protein foods, cottage cheese, nuts, eggs and meat. Nuts are another but they are not desirable in the diet yet.

Cooking the egg hard and stewing part and baby all of the soft part the vegetables could be tried to see if it is really an egg dislike or a plain egg sensitivity, our dietist. Three-Meal Senedge suggests the foods as well as the times of feeding for this schedule. The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

DECISION of the Calgary junior football officials in agreeing to a sudden-death final for the provincial title in case the University of Alberta was unable to make a trip south for the usual return game is to be commended.

Regulations covering the annual event call for a home-and-home total point series. There was however no junior circuit operating here this season and for a time it appeared certain there would be no playoff. Then the University sent in a challenge, but Varsity teams are precluded from travelling for the duration.

However, Calgary officials fully cognizant of the unusual situation but determined to keep junior football going, agreed to the sudden death affair in Edmonton, still hopeful of course that a return engagement might be staged. It looks like a sporting proposition from this corner.

THREE FOR TOMMY?

COACH Tommy Hays will be shooting for his third junior grid title at Clarke Stadium tonight. He handled the Maple Leafs in 1940 and in 1941.

It is only a month since the University opened and these days football ranks about 67th on the priority list around the halls of learning. But there is some high class material on the Golden Bear roster and it looks very much as if Tommy has a very excellent chance to boost the count to three.

Bob Harrison, mentor for the Blizzards is conceded to have a fast club, but doubtless the former Bronk has been getting in some special licks on passing, realizing his boys might be outweighed.

A meeting of the Alberta Rugby Union has been called for this afternoon. The president, Les Ferguson, of Calgary is here and so is Jack Bannerman, president of the Calgary Junior League. Jack Grogan, manager of the Blizzards is the Union secretary. And of course Vere Carmichael never misses a junior final.

FRANK TELLS ANOTHER

AS a prolific story-telling source, Frankie Boucher, the New York Ranger coach has few equals. Dave Dryburgh, of the Regina Leader dug up this one.

Seems that when Frankie was 14 he decided he'd better be getting down to the rink to see Brother George play for Ottawa Senators. So armed with two-bits admission he hiked three miles for his first glimpse of the professionals and arrived at a packed rink hallway through the first period.

"First thing I saw was a fight on the ice and there was George giving somebody the works," explains Frankie, "so that was okay with me. But in a few minutes a guy behind me started hollering for the other fellow to clean George's clock and I took issue with that. I reached out and poked him on the nose."

"When things were straightened out George was thrown out of the game, I was tossed out of the rink and walked home minus my two bits. I thought professional hockey was a helluva game."

Patterson Heavyweight Reverses Former Verdict Without Being Touched

Savold Flattens Blunt in First Round

Just Minute Required for Revenge Kayo

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Lee Savold, Patterson, N.J., heavyweight, scored a whirlwind first-round knockout over Eddie Blunt of New York before 5,592 at the Arena last night. The knockout came at 1:02 of the opening heat. Savold weighed 195 pounds, 25 less than his opponent.

Savold's quick triumph avenged a 10-round decision which he dropped to Blunt in Akron, Ohio, three weeks ago. Blunt never landed a blow in last night's brief session.

In his dressing room after the fight, Savold said he was prepared for a quick finish. "I was all warmed up and had been practicing rushing out of my corner for 15 minutes before I was to go on," he said.

Freddy Pope, Sammy Angott's protege from Columbus, Ohio won a verdict over Pittsburgh's Jackie Wilson, former National Boxing Association featherweight titlist, in a 10-rounder.

The split decision was booed by the crowd. The two judges voted for Pope while Referee Joe Sedley cast his ballot for Wilson.

Many of the customers hadn't settled in their seats for the scheduled 10-rounder between Savold and Blunt when the blond puncher rushed out of his corner and dropped the Negro for a two-count with a lightning right.

Blunt rose dizzily only to go down again for no count from another right. Savold met him with a hard left as he arose and the New Yorker slumped to the canvas again for a nine count.

Still groggy, Blunt was greeted with another left that provided the finishing touch. The Negro made a futile attempt to rise from the floor as the count reached the limit.

Savold's lightning win sent the customers home wondering how the New Yorker managed to gain the decision in their first meeting.

Physical Training Classes Popular

Well over 200 Edmonton men and women registered for physical training classes under the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training program. Six centres have been in operation for some time, these being South Side (Normal school and Bonnie Doon), Calder, Bissell Memorial (Aircraft Repair men), I.O.O.F. Hall, 103 street (Aircraft Repair women), and I.O.O.F. Hall on 95 Street and the plan is being expanded. The leaders shown above are: (Standing, reading from the left), Lyle Watson, Doris (Jordan) Garside, Jean (Warr) Binnie, Jean (Fuller) Osmack; seated, Lorne "Lucky" Binnie. The "keep fit" program is proving very popular and gratifying results are being obtained. There is no fee for attending classes.

Alberta Title at Stake

Calgary Junior Gridders Here for Clash With Varsity

SUDDEN-DEATH game for the Alberta junior football championship between Calgary Blizzards and the University of Alberta is scheduled for Clarke Stadium tonight commencing at 7:30.

Coach Bob Harrison, former Calgary Bronk led his squad of 30 players into the city this morning and advance reports from the south are that the invaders constitute the strongest club ever to represent the Foothill's city in a playoff.

The Blizzards topped off a good showing during the regular season in the Calgary Junior League by defeating West End Tornadoes in the loop title series. For the provincial final six Tornadoes and one from the Stampeders have been added to the team.

Included on the Calgary roster is Alvin Hammond, starry backfielder in last year's final and Gordon Logan, a Chicagoan, reputed to be a great kicker. Dave Kaplan, with Winnipeg Bombers during 1942 is also a member of the team.

The University's junior Golden Bears have never worked as a unit but the boys all played throughout the interface schedule and most of them have had considerable junior experience, either here or in Calgary.

Coach Tommy Hays, with a pair of provincial junior titles to his credit however appears to be quite satisfied as to the ability of his squad—"as good a team as I ever coached," says Tommy.

Unbeaten Clubs To Clash Today In Ontario Grid

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—(CP)—One of two unbeaten football records is almost certain to fall in Saturday's Ontario Rugby Football Union senior program.

The two unbeaten teams—Hamilton with six wins, one of them protested by Toronto Balmy Beach, and Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes with five wins—clash at Hamilton's Scott Park in their first meeting of the season.

The Hamilton game features a program which finds all six teams of the league in action—Toronto Balmy Beach Indians in Toronto and Ontario Navy invading Ottawa for a game with the luckless Combines who have failed to register a win in six starts.

Although reports are that Hurricanes have been looking none too formidable in practice this week, their followers are finding some solace in reports from the Hamilton camp that halfback Joseph (Red) Hickey and lineman Pete McDonald will not be in action because of injuries.

Manitoba Juniors May Go to Sask.

TORONTO, Oct. 23.— (CP) — W. A. Hewitt, registrar of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Friday announced the result of a telegraphic vote among members of the C.A.H.A. registration committee on an appeal over the transfer of four hockey players from Winnipeg to Moose Jaw.

The Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association refused to approve the transfer and the Saskatchewan Amateur Hockey Association appealed to the C.A.H.A. Hewitt said the vote awarded two junior-age players, John Kasmer and Walter Hamulka, to Moose Jaw and declared reserved on two juvenile-age players, Tom Rockey and Clare Parker.

Fastball Meeting Tomorrow Night

The fall meeting of the Edmonton Fastball Association is being held in the Corona Hotel tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. A representative of all teams is requested.

Girls' Basketball Meeting Monday

Girls' basketball will swing back into action for the winter season on Monday night when an organization meeting will be held in the McDougall Commercial High school at 8 o'clock. All those girls who have played on either the Comets or the Starlets, as well as any others who might like to try out for places on either of these teams, are cordially invited to attend.

Last year the Comets, consisting of many of the former Gradettes, plus former Capitals and Dann, of the Grads, were not entered in any league but played 16 games against the various men's teams entered in the city league, and won seven of them. Those who saw the girls in action were convinced that they compared very favorably with many of the old-time teams, and would probably have held their own against outside competition had it been possible to bring such teams to Edmonton.

On the other hand, the Starlets, a group of younger girls, won the Edmonton city league and probably would have had little difficulty winning the Alberta intermediate league had one been in operation.

Both the Comets and the Starlets have lost several of last year's players, and would be glad to welcome girls of senior high school calibre, or any others who have played on intermediate or senior teams elsewhere. Coach Clare Hollingsworth will again have charge of the Starlets, while if the Comets decide to reorganize it is probable that Coach Percy Page will again direct them.

Red Wings to Make Strong Bid For a Repeat Title in N. H. L.

By ALAN HARVEY

DETROIT, Oct. 23.—(CP)—As well fixed for manpower as any National Hockey League club despite loss of seven regulars, Detroit Red Wings base claims for a second straight world's championship in 1944 around a solid nucleus of seasoned players and a sprinkling of newcomers from amateur ranks.

From the club which defeated Boston Bruins four straight times in the 1942-43 Stanley cup final, Manager Jack Adams has lost four key men to the R.C.A.F., one has quit hockey temporarily, one to the United States armed services and one has been refused permission to sign but the champions are still formidable and Adams says "we look as good as any of 'em."

"Our big problem this season is that most of our players can't leave town," said Adams. "We may partially solve this difficulty by having some of the players take their vacations in the winter, a couple of days at a time, when trips are due."

One veteran forward line of Syd Howe, Carl Liscombe and Captain Modere (Mud) Bruneleau is intact from last season along with forwards Joe Carveth and Bill Jennings and defencemen Cully Simon and Harold Jackson. Carveth has been given a draft deferment because of a twice-fractured leg and Jennings received 2-A draft classification because of dependents and his work in an essential industry.

OTHER CANDIDATES

Candidates likely to earn other forward berths are Frank Bennett, converted from defenceman to centre, and Tony Butkovich, also a centre. Left wing prospects slated for regular duty are Adam Brown, Johnny Sherf and Bernard Ruelle.

A five-way fight for defence duties is in prospect between Gordon Sherritt Bill Quackenbush, Rudy Zunich, Simon and Jackson.

Detroit's first-string netminder will be Jimmy Franks, who played most of last season on loan to New York Rangers. Franks, only one of last year's N.H.L. netminders still in the league, will be supported by Normie Smith, who played goal for Detroit several seasons ago.

Rookies who reported to the Detroit camp include goalie Emile Francis, North Battleford, Sask. among rookie defence prospects are Norman Grinke, Flin Flon, Man., and Vic Lynn, Saskatoon.

Forwards among the newcomers are Roy Glover, Fort William, Ont., and Rod Morrison and Cy Rouse, Saskatoon.

Members of the 1942-43 club now in the R.C.A.F. are goalie Johnny Mowers, who won the Vezina trophy last season; defenceman Jack Stewart and forwards Harry Watson and Sid Abel. Ebbie Goodfellow, last year a part-time player, no longer is connected with Wings and centre Don Grosso is nursing a wrist injury which make his future status uncertain. Eddie Wares has given up hockey temporarily and Jimmy Orlando cannot sign pending result of his appeal against a four-year sentence imposed on a charge of evading the United States Selective Service Act. Alex Motter is a member of the United States Coast Guard.

Noted Sportsman Dies at Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—(CP)—John (Nip) Dwan, 47, one of Canada's best-known sport figures, died Friday at his home, ill since February, he had been in hospital until two days ago.

He managed the Toronto Capitals and Toronto Argonauts football teams before winning great prominence as playing manager of the Toronto Hillcrests baseball club which won many city and provincial titles.

In 1927 he became business manager of the Chicago Cardinals professional hockey team and three years later served in the same capacity with New York Americans in the National Hockey League.

Later he returned to Canada and organized the National Sea Fleas who won the Allan cup and the senior hockey championship of Canada.

Surviving are his widow and a brother, Tom of Edmonton.

Thomas N. Dwan, 11912 103 avenue, advertising manager of the Edmonton Bulletin, is the brother of the aforementioned deceased.

Bars Player—Coach is Sued

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 23.—(AP)—The Ohio High School Football Coaches' Association Friday threw its "support and sympatiy" behind James L. Lymper, Galion High School mentor, who was sued Thursday by a student seeking reinstatement on the grid team.

Young Stoner and his father also asked a $25,000 judgment against Lymper, charging he deprived the youth of "a scolarship in several colleges and the right to enjoy and receive a college education" by uttering "false, malicious and defamatory statements" about him.

Ralph W. (Bill) Stoner, 17-year-old senior at Galion High, asked the Common Pleas court to order Lymper to reinstate him to the squad on which he played two straight years. Lymper said the youth was barred this fall for not participating in spring workouts.

Young Stoner and his father also asked a $25,000 judgment against Lymper, charging he deprived the youth of "a scolarship in several colleges and the right to enjoy and receive a college education" by uttering "false, malicious and defamatory statements" about him.

Fred Thomson From Manitoba

Former Senior Hockey Star Finds Nephew at Leaf Camp

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 23.—(CP)—The slight bald man with the spectacles stepped up to Coach Hap Day, gestured out over the ice where the Toronto Maple Leafs were practicing, and asked which was Jim Thomson of Winnipeg.

Day peered over the rookie-crowded ice, then yelled at a husky young man on defence to come over to the rail. When he did, the slight, bald man grabbed his hand and pumped it up and down.

Two widely-separated generations of an old Manitoba hockey family had met for the first time.

The small man on the sidelines was Fred Thomson, manager of a bank here now, but 35 years ago one of the sharpest little forwards in Manitoba senior hockey. Back in the days when Winnipeg Vics and Strathconas, Kenora Thistles, Brandon and Portage la Prairie had a corner on the hockey mart in Manitoba, he played for Portage la Prairie from 1904-07 (one of his mates was the legendary Cyclone Taylor) and later with Qu'Appelle and Saskatoon.

Seeing his nephew for the first time, this representative of a hockey age that didn't know artificial ice, forward passing or fancy training methods recalled that Jim's father, Douglas Thomson, was the only one of the four Thomson sons of Portage la Prairie who didn't turn out to be a good hockey player. Even his father, Dick Thomson, played until he was 45.

Fred Thomson has more than his own creditable hockey past to talk about now, with his frequent visits to the rink here to watch young Jim working out on the Leaf defence with Ross Knowles, the 33-year-old veteran of more Port Arthur Bearcat teams than he cares to remember. It is not yet sure that Jim will make a place with the Leafs. Even if he doesn't Toronto has a place for him with Marlboros of the junior "A" series in the Ontario Hockey Association.

That is where Leafs place their youngest and most promising prospects for seasoning.

Boston Manager Endorses Changes In Hockey Rules

QUEBEC, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Art Ross, busily putting his Boston Bruins through their paces for Sunday's exhibition game here against Montreal Canadiens, takes time off each day to wax enthusiastic about the new National Hockey League rules. Players have been switched around a 90-degree angle for the face-off, and forward passes are now permitted as far as centre ice.

"These rules are the greatest thing that ever happened," says Art. "They make a remarkable difference and will produce very interesting hockey. I am positive they will make the N.H.L. race all the keener."

Local railbirds were bewildered at the youthful appearance of this year's rookies. Most of these boys are graduates of the Regina Abbots, a Western Canada club sponsored by the Bruins. Chuck Scherza, 19, was with the Junior Abbotts two years ago, played for Oshawa Generals last season, and is now a member of the second alternate line for Sunday's game, playing beside Don Gallinger and Bep Guidolin.

Training Camp Notes

By The Canadian Press

Coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens is experimenting with a mixture of rookies and veterans in tentative forward lines. Fernand Majeau, improving at every drill, Buddy O'Connor and Gerry Heffernan form one unit with captain Toe Blake, Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard at another combination. Alex Smart, Smiley Maronek and veteran Charlie Sands made another lineesome and other lines comprised Bernie Lauzon-Tod Campeau-Andy Perron and Bob Fillion-Joe Petit-Walker Zuke.

Mr. Hockey speaking:

"The average youngster today is far ahead of hockey players of my time. It's the intelligence of contact with minor and major professional competition. Today we've got 16 and 17-year-old lads on our squad with amazing hockey sense. . . . They've either played in the bigger ranks of the country or they've been associated with big teams or prominent players."

Eddie Shore, now coaching Buffalo's American League Bisons, made the remarks while visiting at Toronto Maple Leafs' training camp in St. Catharines, Ont. He says the hockey N.H.L. fans are going to see this winter "will be a forward's paradise and a defenceman's headache."

Johnny Sherf, former University of Michigan star who gave up hockey last season after being shunted around the minor leagues for six seasons, counted twice Thursday night as Detroit Red Wings decisioned Cleveland Barons 5-2.

Clifford (Fido) Purpur, 30-year-old native of Grand Falls, N.D., who had a mediocre career in the now-defunct American Association before joining Chicago Black Hawks as a regular in 1940, has had 150 stitches taken in his face during a 12-year hockey campaign. Despite his age, Fido is counting on his best season this year.

New York Rangers announced Thursday night they had signed Art Strobel, fast-skating left winger who played for Regina Commandos in the southern Saskatchewan junior league last season. Ranger officials said 20-year-old Strobel will team with Grant Warwick and Don Raleigh, 17-year-old Winnipeg youngster.

Manager Jack Adams of Red Wings yesterday announced signing of Vic Lynn, 19-year-old Saskatoon defenceman; Roy Glover, 17-year-old Fort William, Ont., left wing; and Jack O'Hara, 19-year-old defenceman who also comes from Saskatoon.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—These are jittery days for Michael Strauss Jacobs. Fight results in the morning papers make him so nervous he can hardly down a saucer of coffee. And if Lee Savold had been licked at Cleveland last night, poor Mike probably would have crumpled over onto his egg cup today.

Mike's pugilists and scheduled shows have suffered so many reverses recently that he has taken out copyrights on the expressions "fights called off" and "fight postponed." He has been visited with so many fistic afflictions that he considers changing his middle name from Strauss to Job.

Seems that every time a prominent pug takes on a "tune-up" match, it proves a "burn-up" for Promoter Jacobs.

FACE-SAVING FIGHT

LEE SAVOLD, blond heavyweight of Paterson, N.J., engaged in a tune-up last night at Cleveland with Eddie Blunt, Brooklyn negro. It was a forced tune-up, a redemption bout made necessary by Blunt's upset victory over Savold at Akron, O., Oct. 5, in their first tune-up encounter. Savold had to save his face last night by licking Blunt, or his Madison Square Garden main event with Tami Mauriello on Nov. 5 will be called off.

Jacobs almost dropped his saucer Wednesday morning when he read that Vinnie Vines of Schenectady, N.Y., had been knocked out in the fourth round by Ernie (Cat) Robinson at Brooklyn's Broadway Arena. Robinson substituted for Joe Governale in this disordant tune-up.

The tune-up was supposed to sharpen Vines for Marvin Bryant of Texas in the opening show Monday night at St. Nick's Arena. Which Jacobs recently took over as a "feeder" club to develop talent for the Garden.

VINES upset caused Jacobs to postpone St. Nick's opening until Nov. 1, when middleweights Coley Welch and George Kochan will provide the entertainment—unless Kochan gets upset tonight in Brooklyn by Wild Bill McDowell.

Meanwhile if Savold and Mauriello manage to climb into the Garden ring, Nov. 5, Promoter Mike will stage his first Garden show since Oct. 4, eve of the World Series, when Bobby Ruffin upset Beau Jack, former lightweight champ. The rodeo has been in the Garden since.

Ruffin was a mere substitute against Beau Jack, who had been scheduled that night for a return title tilt with champion Bob Montgomery, who came up with infected wisdom teeth—after one previous postponement.

JACK FIGHTS NOV. 19

DESPITE Beau Jack's defeat, his return title brawl with Montgomery now is slated for Nov. 19—unless Montgomery suffers cuts or hand injuries Monday night in a tune-up bout with Petey Scalzo at Philadelphia.

Meanwhile, Fritzie Zivic, the welter champ who is slated for a Garden main event with Jake Lamotta Nov. 12, was upset last Friday at Detroit by Jose Basora. Apparently the Zivic-Lamotta affair still is scheduled.

Ruffin and Sammy Angott are tentatively slated for the Garden, Nov. 19. But meanwhile Angott

Thistle Curlers To Meet Nov. 3

Dewhurst Leads Dufferin Riders

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—(CP)—It's just a case of laying it in and picking it up at Dufferin Park these days. All you have to do is follow the mounts of a Toronto boy named Jimmy Dewhurst.

For the fourth consecutive day, Dewhurst hooted home three winners at the half-mile oval yesterday to move into a one-point lead in Dufferin's jockey contest over Winnipeg's Bobby Simmers.

Since Dewhurst started his sensational spurt Tuesday, the race between the jockeys for the $400 posted by the Dufferin management to be awarded the leading jockey, has drawn more public attention than the horses. Four days ago Dewhurst was 24 points behind Simmers. Now he has 16 points to 15 for simmers with the contest to be decided on the final day of the Canadian Racing season today.

Top Boots, a western Canada horse, surprised in the fifth race yesterday at $35.95.

LONDON.—(CP)—An all-woman British repair and rebuilding factory recently set a record by stripping down, repairing and reassembling two blitzed three-ton trucks in six hours each.

Easy does it!

In tense moments of "briefing", how naturally an airman seeks the gentle solace of a Sweet Cap! It helps him to take it easy, to conserve his energy. This is Sweet Caps' service to all services. And they do it so delightfully that they are the most popular cigarettes with Canadians over here, over there, everywhere!

"Still In Perfect Condition"

"What a treat it was to taste a Canadian smoke again!" writes a Flight Sergeant of the R.C.A.F. now in Ceylon. Though the parcel had to follow the airman nearly around the world - which was doubtless the reason why it took eight months to catch up with him - he reported that, "Every package was still in perfect condition."

Boucher Also Impressed

Patrick Says Don Raleigh Rangers' "Sweetest Rookie"

WINNIPEG, Oct. 23.—(CP)—If Don Raleigh of Winnipeg doesn't make good in the National Hockey League, Lester Patrick and Frank Boucher, coach and manager respectively of New York Rangers, are going to be mighty disappointed.

Raleigh, a 17-year-old lad with only one season of junior hockey behind him, has pleased Patrick and Boucher so much in pre-season workouts here, they have signed him to a 1943 Ranger contract, and expect him to play a large part in Ranger fortunes this winter.

"Raleigh is the sweetest rookie I looked at for quite a few seasons," Patrick said. "In fact, he's a jewel.

"He's a better player at 17, than Phil Watson was at 20," the veteran New York manager said. "He really flashes around on the blades, and he's here, there and everywhere. If he doesn't click I'll be very disappointed."

Coach Boucher also goes out on the limb for Raleigh, who received his minor hockey experience with Winnipeg Excelsiors, quoted by Vince Leah, a Winnipeg sports-writer.

"If he goes like he has in practice, he'll be a sensation in the National League this season," said Boucher.

The Ranger management have been working the youngster on a forward line with Grant Warwick and Art Strobel. Raleigh pivots the line with Warwick on right wing and Strobel on left.

"This line should cause a lot of worry to the opposition this season," Boucher said. "They have plenty of speed and are rapidly weaving a pattern of understanding."

Bruins Choice Of Ranger Head

WINNIPEG, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Lester Patrick, manager of New York Rangers, says Boston Bruins loom as the team to beat for National Hockey League honors this season.

Discussing prospects for the coming season here last night the Ranger boss said "They'd be my choice right at the moment."

"They appear to be the best off in regard to manpower," he said, "but the loss of their star goalkeeper, Frank Brimsek, won't help them any."

"They also have Bill Cowley, who is practically a hockey team in itself."

Patrick refused to comment on his own team's changes this season; but said that "We feel confident they will make a good showing."

Hockey Meeting Next Wednesday

Annual meeting of the Edmonton and District Hockey Association will be held at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 27, at 409 Agency Bldg.

Two Defencemen Sign With N.Y. For Coming Year

WINNIPEG, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers, said last night that Ott Heller and Gordon Davidson, both defencemen, had signed their 1943-44 Ranger contracts. Heller, who is starting his 13th season with the club, hails from Kitchener, Ont., while Davidson is a Regina product. They are two of the seven players which have reached terms with the Ranger management.

Patrick also said that Frank McCool, who had impressed in pre-season workouts here as a goalkeeper, had been forced to retire from hockey this season owing to stomach ulcers. The Ranger manager said McCool would have probably received the starting goal assignment this season.

Heller and Davidson are both rated by the Rangers' major-domo as first class defencemen.

Heller played junior hockey with Kitchener Greenshirts before he turned professional with Spring field Indians in 1930. Davidson joined the Rangers after he aided Regina Rangers to the Allan cup in 1941.

McCOOL RATED HIGH AS A GOALTENDER

CALGARY, Oct. 23 — (CP) — Frank McCool, the Calgary youth who was forced to retire from hockey because of stomach ulcers, was honorably discharged from the army last spring for the same reason. Despite his ailment he played throughout the 1942-43 season with Currie Army of the Alberta Service Senior League and was the most consistent goalkeeper that Calgary fans saw perform all winter, ranking ahead of Sugar Jim Henry, Art Rice-Jones, and Tiny Thompson, who played here with Ottawa Commandos, Victoria Army and Calgary Mustangs respectively.

Ex-Big Leaguer Awarded Medal

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Cpl. Henry J. (Zeke) Bonura, for many years a major league first baseman, has been awarded the Legion of Merit medal by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The New Orleans baseball star was given the medal for "exceptionally meritorious conduct" in organizing and managing a successful baseball program for the Mediterranean base section.

Captain Pete Last, former Goodyear Salesman, writes from Sicily: "... the tracks and tires take a terrific beating but there's practically no tire failure caused from enemy action. Good old Goodyears ... they're doing a swell job."

"MY JOB ON THE TEAM BEGAN 9,143 GOODYEARS AGO"

says "Red" Stevens, Tire Builder

22 Years With Goodyear—a family man with a son in the Army—"Red" Stevens is a Solid Citizen, Typical of the Goodyear Craftsmen who are building Tires for Overseas Use.

● "To win a war," said "Red" Stevens, "you've got to have real teamwork. Football that's why the Canadians have done so well in action. They were rated on sports—know the meaning of honest-to-gosh teamplay.

"I like to think of our Goodyear gang as one of the combat teams in this biggest struggle of all . . . war . . .

"Some of us fight—some of us take care of the home front—some of us pass the ammunition but we're all members of a big Goodyear team

"On the fighting front, many hundreds of my Goodyear buddies are in the thick of things—in uniform. They're the all-stars on our team.

"On the home front, thousands of Goodyear dealers are doing their bit by keeping your tires going—repairing, retreading, servicing—saving rubber so that the lads overseas won't go without. They're a big part of the team, too.

"And here at the plant, the rest of us are going all out to build the things the team needs.

"My job on the team began 9,143 Goodyears ago. 9,143 is the number of tires I personally have built for the Armed Forces since war broke out—and I'm just one tire builder in hundreds.

"Perhaps, because you see so many Goodyears around, you think they are mass produced by machines, or something.

"Actually, each one is built by hand—by fellows like me who learned the game from the ground up. And building tires for planes and guns and trucks is a personal matter between us and the boys who use 'em. Sometimes we get letters from our boys overseas, telling us they've seen made-in-Canada Goodyears churning into action in places whose names we can't even pronounce. We get as big a kick out of that as they do.

"Getting back to this idea of teamplay, it seems to me that you motorists and truck drivers are members of our team too. The way you have cling in to conserve rubber has helped put us on the road to victory.

"So keep on babying those tires of yours a while longer. It's nine innings now—and pretty soon we'll sew up the old ball game.

"Then just watch our smoke. We'll swing right into the job of building tires for you—and believe me, we've learned loss about tires in building them to win battle honours."

A Home Front Member of the Team.
Your Goodyear dealer says . . . "Bring your tire troubles to us. We'll keep 'em going. And if you're eligible for new tires . . . please be patient . . . those tires of yours are safer with a permit issued by Goodyear. We're getting 'em out as fast as we can."

Canadian Units Capture Seventh Town in Italy

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Oct. 21.—(Delayed)—(CP)—Two companies of a maritime regiment, now commanded by a Toronto Lieutenant-Colonel, have captured the seventh town yielded by the Germans to advancing Canadians since an important hill-top town was taken a week ago.

After this capture the Canadians, with other 8th Army troops, are enjoying a so-called rest period before the next stage of their advance.

This seventh town was taken without much infantry opposition although the attackers were shelled and mortared heavily during and after the assault. The town, in the foothills of rugged, snow-topped mountains towering 5,000 to 6,000 feet, was under Allied artillery fire for two days before the capture.

STRONG POSITIONS

The Canadians now hold strong positions on a range of hills overlooking a valley and the wooded slopes on the far side of a river.

On the southern flank of the Canadian front, the troops are in a position to advance over good tank country through a valley to a heavily bombed town on a 1,500-foot ridge.

The last stages of the attack on this seventh town were directed personally by the lieutenant-colonel. Earlier one platoon moved through the woods in front of the town under heavy mortar fire and the men were shelled after they entered at 7:15 a.m. By noon the other platoons, which earlier were pinned down by mortar fire, entered.

The Germans didn't remain behind in strength to oppose the Canadians but the Maritimers managed to take five enemy who tried to withdrew to high ground beyond the town and spent the rest of the day lobbing mortar shells into it and occasionally shelling it with artillery.

MORTARS IN ACTION

Canadian mortars were in action, too, and from an excellent observation post in the new Canadian positions an enemy machine-gun and mortar post was seen wiped out by a direct hit. Allied guns were believed also to have knocked out an 88-millimetre battery.

Cadet Escapes Death Plunge

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 23—(AP)—A quick thinking instructor and Frank Giambra's own iron nerve saved the San Francisco flying cadet from a death plunge after he was bounced from the cockpit of a primary army training plane at 500 feet altitude.

Giambra landed astraddle the fuselage against the tail section's stabilizer. He held his place by grasping guy wires.

Norbert J. Lypps, the instructor, motioned for Giambra to remain where he was and started the plane into a gradual climb, made difficult because Giambra's position interfered with the aircraft's response to the controls.

At 2,500 feet, Lypps retarded the engine, sent the plane into a gradual glide and motioned to Giambra to attempt to reach the cockpit. Giambra inched forward to safety.

Say No Civilians, Or High Officers On Missing Plane

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Air force headquarters announced yesterday that no civilians are aboard the Liberator aircraft missing on a flight from an Atlantic coast air base at Dorval, and that no high-ranking air force officers are in its crew or passenger list.

The announcement said all aboard are R.C.A.F. personnel, of whom four are officers of junior rank. The others are non-commissioned officers and airmen.

"R.C.A.F. headquarters issued this announcement," the statement said, "to end recurring rumors that nationally-known figures are among the missing."

The headquarters statement also denied what it termed an "insistent rumor" that the aircraft had flown from overseas.

Edmonton R.C.A.F. "M" Depot Tops Loan Quotas

When it comes to winning objectives early in two Victory Loan campaigns, airmen at No. 3 Edmonton "M" depot, R.C.A.F., are experts and then some. And the higher the quota the easier the job seems to be accomplished. No. 3 "M" depot is among the high honor establishments in the current bond sales campaign in No. 4 Air Training Command that has shown the way to other air force commands. Above are: Sqdn. Ldr. R. 3-Power Talks Now Believed Near Agreement

By M. S. HANDLER

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

MOSCOW, Oct. 23—The tripartite conference of foreign ministers was believed moving smoothly and swiftly toward a final agreement today, enhancing the prospects of a meeting of Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt, and Soviet Premier Josef Stalin before the year-end.

As the conferees prepared for their fifth business meeting, there was no official word on what issues already had been disposed of, but the negotiations obviously had speeded up and the continued cordial atmosphere indicated that satisfactory progress had been made.

While there was no indication as to when the conference would end, it appeared increasingly probable that the way could be cleared for Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin to meet within two months to consider the decisions reached by the foreign ministers.

HOLD LONG MEETING

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, U.S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov convened with their staffs yesterday and remained in session for four and one-half hours.

Eden and Molotov met privately just before the session opened, presumably to amplify a talk the British foreign secretary held with Stalin in the Kremlin Thursday. Members of the American delegation were informed fully on both meetings.

(Londono press reports said Eden delivered a letter from Churchill to Stalin during his interview with the Soviet premier.)

Plane in Crash On Manoeuvres Not Authorized

CALGARY, Oct. 23—(CP)—One of the planes, involved in the recent mid-air collision over Calgary, was engaged in unauthorized manoeuvres in direct contravention of explicit orders, wrote Air Vice Marshal G. R. Howsam, air officer commanding No. 4 Training Command, in a letter to Mayor Davison which will be submitted to city council, Monday. Three airmen were killed in the crash of the two planes.

The other aircraft was flying on an authorized and perfectly safe exercise carried out at a high altitude, the air vice marshal explained.

"The greatest difficulty encountered is that frequently the pilot, who has disobeyed his orders, is dead, and therefore no disciplinary action can be taken," he added.

$73,618.22 Total Of Stock Sales At Calgary Show

CALGARY, Oct. 23—(CP)—With ram prices holding up strongly to the last although the average was down approximately six dollars a head from last year's figures, Calgary's 1943 fall livestock show and sale came to a close last night with total sales for the week reported at $73,618.22 compared with the 1942 aggregate of $49,090.39.

Highest single price on the final day's selling was $102.50 paid by Robert Blastock, of Flier, Idaho, for the champion Suffox ram in the show, owned by Arthur C. B. Grenville of Morrin, Alta.

Neither price was a record, highest money ever paid for a Suffox ram being $210.00 which was recorded last year.

Churchill Cabinet Shuffle Probable

LONDON, Oct. 23—(AP)—A major shuffle in the Churchill government before the opening of the new session of parliament with "a view to strengthening it for the tasks ahead" was forecast today by the Daily Herald.

Declaring the government is preparing to announce the biggest legislative program since the beginning of the war, the newspaper said:

"There are reliable grounds for predicting appointment of a minister of reconstruction with a seat in the war cabinet and authority over the whole field of post-war problems, but no minister has yet been conceded."

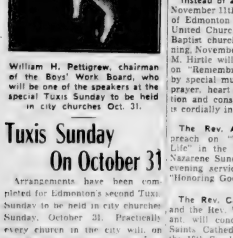

The paper said other changes may be expected to involve alterations in the war office, the law offices, and the withdrawal from the government of at least two well-known personalities."

The newspaper hinted that Sir James Grigg, secretary of state for war, might be involved in one of the two latter changes.

Hon. J. G. Taggart, provincial minister of agriculture said yesterday.

Police Probing Tool Shed Blaze

Investigations into an early Friday morning fire at the Western Canada Flour Mills, where a portable tool shed was partially burned, led police authorities to believe that the blaze had been set by boys, it was learned Saturday morning.

Close to the fire, which damaged a tool box to the exient of $200, were a number of burned school books. The blaze was discovered about 12:30 a.m., Friday.

Pete Rominuk, 9812 75 avenue, an employee of the city waterworks department, stated that a small fire had been burning in the stove inside the shed. It would ont have caused the outbreak of flames.

Police investigations showed that the fire had started in the opposite corner of the shack, where a hole had burned through the floor.

The building itself was badly burned, while tools and other equipment was destroyed. Hall No. 8 responded to the call.

Police investigations are continuing.

Headed by J. Boyd McBride, K.C., president-elect of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, a party of four Edmonton business leaders left Friday night to attend the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Montebello, Quebec, Oct. 27-28-29. Others in the delegation were R. H. Seville, past-president; A. M. Macdonald, and Reg. T. Rose, executive secretary.

Nomination meeting of the Civic Progressive Association scheduled to be held Friday night was postponed until Tuesday, Oct. 28, owing to the poor attendance. Those who arrived at the meeting reported great difficulty in getting there due to the enthusiasm of the crowds watching the big Victory Loan parade and decided the nomination of candidates was too important to be proceeded with without a better representation.

Albert E. Buss, administrative assistant to the director of military and naval affairs of the American Red Cross is in Edmonton prior to continuing his journey by car up the Alaska Military Highway. Mr. Buss' headquarters are in San Francisco, Cal., where he is in charge of the operations of American Red Cross in Canada. He will make the trip up the highway by motor, stopping at installations en route. He expects to go to Fairbanks and other Alaskan cities to familiarize himself with problems and conditions in this area.

William Roy Lindsay Baker, arrested following advices to city police, Friday morning, that a 14-year-old girl was missing, was charged in city police court, Saturday, with contributing to juvenile delinquency. No plea was taken, and the case was remanded by Magistrate A. J. Millar, K.C., to Monday morning. The girl had been visiting at a 105 avenue home. Thursday, it was learned, and about 8:30 p.m. Baker had called for her in a car. She had not returned up to the time her father reported to police, Friday morning.

THE QUESTION

What do you think of the possibility that tea and coffee rationing may be discontinued before Christmas?

THE ANSWERS

MRS. PEARL BATES, housewife: I hope that the restrictions will be lifted, although we have all got used to the restricted supply under rationing. If there is no necessity for rationing then it should be abandoned.

HARRY TORRANCE, clerk: I only hope that when rationing is abandoned we will be able to get a second cup of coffee with our meals. This regulation was the one that caused the most general annoyance, and seemed the least necessary. . . .

WILLIAM HARPER, caretaker: It was always a mystery to me that Canada could not have relaxed coffee and tea rationing when the United States did. The announcement that rationing may be abandoned by Christmas must be music to a great many coffee drinkers' ears.

Independents Plan To Hold Two-Day Meet

Forthcoming convention of the Independent Citizens' Association of Alberta will be held in Calgary Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 17 and 18, according to a statement Saturday by J. Percy Page, M.L.A., president of the organization.

The convention will select a provincial leader for the Independent group, and will adopt a party platform. "It is expected this will be the most important gathering of Independent supporters since the movement was formed some years ago," Mr. Page said.

Main reason for selecting Calgary as the venue for the convention is the difficulty in securing accommodation for the 450 delegates expected to attend.

Mr. Page said at least one meeting each of northern and southern sub-committees of the Independent party will be held before the convention, in order to discuss various planks of the platform, and to line up convention agenda.

At a meeting of the executive some weeks ago, it was decided that each of the 57 provincial constituencies would be entitled to send eight delegates to the convention.

Realizing, however, that many outlying constituencies would find it difficult to send that number, it was also decided that a delegate might carry two proxies in addition to his own vote, so that if only a single delegate was able to attend from a certain riding, that constituency would be entitled to three votes.

Every member of the staff bought at least one bond, to ring up the proud record of 100 per cent. coverage.

Vermilion Ships 61 Carloads Oil

Sixty-one carloads of oil were shipped from the Vermilion oil field during August, according to Dr. G. S. Hume, Calgary, western representative of the Dominion oil controller, who returned Saturday from an inspection visit to the field.

He said that 20 wells have been drilled under the 50-well program undertaken by Canmar Oils, a subsidiary of the Canadian National Railways, and preparations are being made for the drilling of a further two wells under this program.

Four wells have been drilled by the Vermilalta company, and drillers are now bailing one of these wells to production, Dr. Hume said.

Aircraft Repair Ltd. Commemorates Achievements

Planning Special Ceremony At Plant Monday Afternoon; Public Is Invited to Attend

The story behind Aircraft Repair's 1,000th aircraft and 1,500th engine, to be commemorated in a special public ceremony at the Calder plant Monday starting at 3:45 p.m., is the story of one of Canada's most completely equipped repair shops.

The plant handles everything from service checks to major crackups on 25 or 30 different types of planes and performs routine major overhaul on both airframes and engines.

This includes advanced trainers from the British Commonwealth Air Training Program schools in all of Alberta and half of Saskatchewan, as well as operational models, also engines crated in for overhaul. The engine shop can handle, if necessary, up to ten or twelve engines a day, although the average is four to six. Seven or more different types are included.

Many an American airplane which has met with bad luck while operating through Northwest Canada has soon gone on its way again none the worse for wear—thanks to this repair base that has rendered indispensable service to the United States as well as to Canada.

Like most aviation concerns in Canada, this company and the men in it have their roots far back in the commercial operations which have paved the way for most of the present airlines.

President of Aircraft Repair, W. I. Bristnell learned to fly in 1917 with the R.A.F., joined the staff of western Canada Airways in 1927, and became assistant general manager of the enlarged Canadian Airways in 1931. He flew the first prospectors in to Great Bear Lake—a region now famous for oil and radio-active ores. In 1932 he left Canadian Airways to organize his own air line, the Mackenzie Air Service, beginning operations with the first of 1935.

The base at Edmonton provided maintenance for the line and by 1938 began taking overhaul work for United Air Transport which later became Yukon Southern. From the first few months the Mackenzie Air Service prospered and it had grown to 14 airplanes by 1941, many of which were twin-engine, all-metal craft.

BOUGHT INTEREST

At this time Canadian Pacific bought controlling interest in the line and Mr Bristnell concentrated on forming a repair and overhaul company in Edmonton. Having flown all over the Northwest and down the valley of the Mackenzie, he became convinced that Edmonton would become a centre for activity for this region. From the outset staff capable men were chosen and sent to factories in the U.S. to study the most advanced methods of metal working and repair.

The coming of the war found here a small but capable shop ably staffed by seasoned men who had gained their experience with the Mackenzie Airline. The Alaska Highway was begun. The U.S. Army moved through with more and more craft. With the British Air Training program already under way, the Dept. of Munitions and Supply gave out a contract for expansion of equipment and staff, and advanced trainers began to pour in from flight schools in two provinces.

The U.S. Army had obtained use of one hangar owned by Canadian Pacific, but facilities for anything beyond routine servicing were not ready, hence the equipment at Aircraft Repair was offered to help out. Later on two U.S. Army hangars were erected, but the immediate result was that all major overhaul and repair was given to the Canadian shop. Since the Army was for the most part merely passing through most planes were new deliveries requiring only service—they were glad to turn over damaged craft and overhaul operations on the hard working transports to already equipped shops.

Co-operation in a common cause between Canadians and Americans has been splendid. The Army supplies parts, the repair company builds, overhauls and winterizes. It was only to be expected, in this wartime rush to the north into extreme low temperature operations that there would be numerous things which could be learned only by experience.

Many of the modifications worked out below the border had to be revised with the knowledge of actual operation. Temperatures down to about 30 degrees below zero had been fairly well anticipated, but beyond this, to extremes of 60 below, reactions were sudden and severe. Here, the knowledge gained by Canadian flyers and mechanics in years of rigorous winter flying has been freely given and gratefully accepted.

COMPLETE SHOP

The fact that all-metal airplanes had been used on the Mackenzie run had provided a rather complete sheet metal shop. Subsequent expansion has made this department equal to any job, and metal surfaces for every need have been manufactured within the plant.

Cowlings have been revised, changing outflow to meet low temperature requirements as indicated by thermocouples placed around the engine. The propeller blast at 40 degrees below zero concealed oil in reduction gears and caused trouble. To overcome this, "dishpan" covers were fitted in two pieces around the propeller hub over the gear housing to shield it from excessive cooling—a device commonly seen on aircraft in this region.

Use of oil dilution systems required some coaching. Occasionally a dilution valve will stick, causing the oil to be washed out by gas and frosted out at the breather, bringing both fire hazard and danger of seizing in the engine. Proper emphasis on very careful oil pressure check at this point caution pilots to give themselves time to act—either to pump the dilution control to clear the valve or to shut the engine off before damage resulted.

VARIETY OF PLANES

The variety of planes and jobs which has been dealt with is impressive. There was a P-39 which had made a hard landing in snow, tripped on a snow drift, and nosed over, bending the nose section and shaft. To align this part of the plane properly was an operation never before tried away from the factory. The engineering department went to work and built a nose section jig, removed the buckled inner plates behind the gear box, put in stiffeners at this point, and straightened out the forward frame. Plumb bobs were hung from the rudder, centre of fuselage midway, centre of reduction gear housing, and centre of propeller hub.

A lightly stretched piano wire lined up underneath furnished an index to check alignment throughout the whole length. When finished, the forward reference points were absolutely true, and with a new shaft installed the plane flew as smoothly as when it left the factory.

Planes in Great Numbers Put in Shape to Fly Again at Aircraft Repair

Here is a section of the aircraft overhaul division of Aircraft Repair Ltd., the tremendous plant that has contributed greatly to keeping planes flying in this great conflict. Aircraft Repair Ltd., which had 25 employees in April, 1941, now has more than 2,400.

Several cracked-up P-40's have been rebuilt from parts supplied by the Army. Liquid cooled engines have not come through in sufficient volume to warrant overhaul equipment for this type, so they are sent away.

NEW ENGINE

Douglas C-54's have been in for service and checking, and in one case an engine had to be pulled and a new one installed. Curtiss Commandos which have been working for the ATC also are occasional visitors at the repair base. One of these was reclaimed from what at first was declared a total loss. There has been much praise from all sides on the utility of this craft.

For Ansons and Oxfords, extensive woodworking facilities have been set up. The shop is equipped for plywood forming over molds, building up of laminates in a glue press made by the plant, and all types of wood cutting and finishing. Assemble of frames in jigs and complete rebuilding from ample parts stores sent in from manufacturers are performed.

As is usually the case when equipment has to be built on the spot, many ingenious ideas have come to light. The balanced, roll-over wing dollies certainly are good examples, and these serve particularly good purpose in view of the large percentage of women employed—somewhere near 40 per cent—involving the same problems of work simplification which have influenced our manufacturers.

EASILY ROLLED

Fuselage jigs have been made which are easily rolled about on casters but which can be accurately fixed and leveled by turning down four jacking bolts running through the frame corners. Lugs on lower end-frame members are filed to true horizontal plane of the jig and the checking level is set across them when the bolts are adjusted.

The number of planes repaired per month runs in the neighborhood of 60, and may include any of the following types: Avro-Anson, Airspeed Oxford, North American Harvard, Noorduyn Norseman, Bellanca-Grow, Beechcraft, Bristol Bolingbroke, and many others which may not be enumerated for military reasons.

One particularly useful organization within the company is that of field service units. It was found that damage to aircraft was very often greatly increased by unskilled packing and shipping-in from the scene of accident, not to mention that very often sending in of the whole craft was unnecessary owing on-the-spot job was feasible. Groups of well trained men are kept in continual circulation among the schools, doing field repair, supervising, dismantling and crating of planes for factory attention. Control boards in the superintendent's office show the disposition of men about the country at all times, with colored tags representing foremen, leadmen, etc. Each training field is allotted a board.

OVERHAUL SHOP

The engine overhaul shop, especially well set up and systemized turns out a creditable volume of work which is meanwhile handicapped by wide variety of types. These are mainly Armstrong-Siddeley Cheetah Nines and Tens, Jacobs 145M's and L6M's, Pratt & Whitney Hornets and H. Wasps, Wright Cyclones and occasional Continentals.

Six test stands and exceptionally efficient and well ventilated cleaning tanks obviate any bottleneck which can develop at these points. Crated engines are unloaded and given a preliminary cleaning spray before disassembly. When completely taken down and placed on racks, all parts go through the cleaning tanks and are sent on to finish-cleaning benches where hard carbon is scraped and inside surfaces hand-cleaned.

As parts come through this pro-

Aircraft Plant Teaches Construction and Repair

Splendid Modern School Gives Full Training in All Branches Re-Building

School has been going for about three weeks now, but there are "students" who have been attending classes since mid-summer . . . and getting paid for it, too. Yes, it's at Aircraft Repair where M. J. Hilton, former head of Edmonton Technical School, supervises an industrial trade school of the latest type.

Aptitudes of "pupils" available are determined and where necessary they are trained to better fill vacancies in the big plant's staff.

Divided into two major divisions the school's induction section acquaints all persons with company procedure, while the other, the training branch, at present, concentrates on "junior trainees" as young unskilled laborers are called.

In the not too distant future special upgrading classes for employees who wish to improve their positions are planned.

All persons entering the employ of Aircraft Repair are placed in the induction school for a few days. A person cannot get through in less than two days, but may be required to stay longer. While here tests are administered on two successive days, and instructions on plant rules and regulations, health, safety and personnel procedures are given. Each department of the plant is visited, and its work explained.

SECOND DAY

At the end of the second day the newcomer is placed in a selected department for try-out. On the second day of the try-out, the foreman reports on the work done. If the report is favorable the candidate is transferred to that department as a permanent employee. Should the report be unfavorable, the case is discussed with the foreman, and if still unfavorable, the candidate is given na try-out in some other department, or is advised to take training in the training school.

At present the training branch of the school will concentrate on the training of those employees listed as "unskilled laborers with possibilities." They are required to attend a preliminary training course of 12 weeks' duration for 8 hours a day, 6 days per week, or a total of 576 hours.

STUDY PARTS

Besides induction school training they make a study of the airplane and its parts, including aeronautical definitions, terms and types. An elementary introduction is given in the principles of the aero engine and its accessories.

Also on the course of study are aircraft materials and processes, related mathematics and sciences, blue-print reading, introduction to theory of flight, and preliminary shop instruction in the proper use and care of basic tools of the industry.

The school at Aircraft Repair is a step taken to meet the serious problem of providing skilled workers for an expanding production from a diminishing supply of skilled labor.

Trade School Operates at Aircraft Repair

Aircraft Repair operates a trade school to help meet the skilled labor problem in the industry. Divided into two branches, one, the induction section where all new employees are acquainted with company procedures, and the other, training division, with instruction in the fundamentals of the aircraft business, the school is doing a big job. Shown above is M. J. Hilton, former head of the Edmonton Technical School, and now supervisor of the A.R.L. school, interviewing new employee Doris Taschuk.

Scientist Doubtful Of Secret Weapons

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 23.—(CP)—Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, acting president of the National Research Council, Ottawa, and dean of engineering, University of Saskatchewan, said here yesterday he believed "no secret weapon has yet appeared or is likely to appear in the present war that has not been anticipated from the scientific standpoint." He was addressing the University of Western Ontario convocation which conferred an honorary doctor of laws degree upon him.

Reach Agreement For Compensation On Liquor Revenue

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Provincial authorities yesterday reached "substantial agreement" with federal officials on the Dominion's proposals for compensating the provinces for possible loss of liquor revenues under the wartime policy of reducing sales of liquor, wine and beer.

Some minor changes will be made in the draft federal agreement and then the new agreements will be sent to the provinces for signature, it was announced.

It is understood that in most of the provinces, if not all, there will be no claim for compensation from the federal treasury, since sales at higher prices and lowered proof strength will bring revenue up to the normal level.

2,995 Starving Indians Die After Entering Hospital

NEW DELHI, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Of 10,020 starving persons admitted to Calcutta hospitals between Aug. 16 and Oct. 18, 2,995 died, the British-owned newspaper Statesman said yesterday in reporting on the scope of the Indian famine.

The figures are over and above those persons found dead on the streets and do not include deaths in the whole of Bengal on which no official or other estimates are available.

President Aircraft Repair Ltd. Pioneered Air Routes

W. Leigh Brintnell Served With Royal Flying Corps During Great War 1914-18

Planes hiking down the Mackenzie Valley from China and Russia, planes based on Canada's western prairies training youngsters to bomb Germany, planes back from active service on the Alaska front—these are the aircraft which are making Edmonton one of the world's leading air junctions and the scene of one of Canada's largest and most unusual airplane repair plants.

The man responsible for the establishment is one of Canada's best known aviation veterans, W. Leigh Brintnell.

During the long between-war years when Canadian aviation was a northern bush flying proposition, when air lines went broke faster than stockbrokers, Brintnell built up a reputation as one of Canada's smartest and most successful aviation executives. As operations manager of Western Canada Airways, and assistant general manager of Canadian Airways Limited, he directed the largest flying systems the Dominion had known in those days.

WELL KNOWN

Serving under him were such famous northland pilots as Punch Dickens, Wop May, Walter Gilbert. He organized the Prairie airway circuit on which service for the first six months was as high as 93 per cent, equal to the best of the older U.S. lines, and in the winter of 1931 he organized his own airline, Mackenzie Air Service Limited, and later United Air Services Limited, which were sold to Canadian Pacific Airlines in 1941.

It was from these enterprises that he transferred his energies to the promotion of Aircraft Repair Limited, which today does one of Canada's most extraordinary war jobs.

Through the efficiency which crowned his busy life many have forgotten that Brintnell has the reputation of being one of Canada's most capable and experienced pilots, a man who never asked a subordinate to do what he would not do himself.

TRAINED PILOTS

During the last war while training fighter pilots for the Royal Flying Corps he watched a student stunting at low altitude glide into a field upside down. The student was decapitated. The effect of the accident on other students was shaking until Brintnell jumped into another machine, rolled it into the identical situation from which the accident had occurred, then calmly demonstrated how a cool-headed pilot could extricate his plane from such a situation.

In building airlines he was usually the first to blaze a new route through wilderness and many a trail blazing pioneer flight was made first by Brintnell.

Today his plant keeps hundreds of United Nations' planes humming smoothly and methodically across one of the world's newest and most romantic air routes.

Airplane Repair Plant Achieves Notable Record

cess the are arranged in groups and placed on parts racks which are marked and spaced for all components of each type of engine. This has been a great aid, with increasing use of women and new untrained help, to keep parts classified and to make visable at a glance any missing items which can then be checked back to the cleaning tanks before proceeding further. Stores girls require much less training because all part spaces on the racks are numbered, so that it is not even necessary to know the part names.

CAREFUL PLANNING

Additional careful planning in this direction is shown by neatly arranged tool boards, also with numbered places. The boards are arranged in groups according to make of engine, so that the wrong tools will not be mixed with other types.

There is careful inspection, with magnaflux and precision measuring sorting out serviceable, repairable, and condemned parts, which are tagged accordingly. When racks proceed to the stores department, rejects are taken off and new replacements placed in separate boxes on the rack to keep them apart from the items already inspected. Since new parts must also go through inspection, time is saved by segregating them here.

STORES DIVISION

From the stores division, racks are routed into the repair bay, where parts are split up according to different sections of the engine with each group in charge of different men who specialize on those units. All repair work is done here and the parts replaced on the racks. A final check for accuracy, selective fit, and completeness of assembly components is made before the racks are sent to the assembly lines. As far as possible, every set passed on is complete to every part, so that no time may be lost in assembly.

Assembly lines are long and well spaced, and each runs between two lines of benches. One line is devoted to Cheetahs, one to Jacobs, one to Pratt and Whitneys, and one to Wrights and more occasional visitors. Lines are divided into five sections consisting of rear engine section, power, front section, cylinders and pistons, and accessories and final wiring, with separate inspection for each group as completed.

BUILT IN SHOP

Two engine dollies to carry finished engines to the test houses have been built in the shop. Each accommodates two engines and is equipped with detachable mounts which are assembled with the engine. The whole unit is then fastened to the dolly and transferred to the test stands, of which there are two for Cheetahs, two for Jacobs, and two for Hornets and Wasps. Adaptor mounts can be attached for various types. The test houses are of modern, soundproof brick construction.

After test runs, engines come back to the shop for final inspection and servicing. When approved by R.A.F. or R.C.A.F., they are crated and loaded into railroad cars which run beside the shop on a spur track. Cheetahs and Jacobs are close enough in dimensions to enable shipping identical crates, which always include a mounting plate for each make. In this way crates can be interchanged according to need.

USABLE PARTS

Heads Plant

W. Leigh Brintnell, president of Aircraft Repair Limited, and in addition to his executive duties he stands out as one of the outstanding airmen of the Dominion. He began flying during the Great War of 1914-1918, in which he trained many pilots while he served with the Royal Flying Corps.

crashed trainers, which sometimes arrive as little more than a heap of junk. With the considerable variety of types, knowledge of how much can be saved and reworked is very important to efficient and economical maintenance of stores. The wood, metal and fabric shops can remake almost anything and with the complete welding facilities, propeller shop, and instrument accessories sections, a complete aircraft can be rebuilt from what initially appears to be a dead loss.

The propeller shop should not be passed without some mention, for it services propellers of all type from the large Hamilton Standards used on B-25's, to small two-blade wood airscrews of the trainers. Many of the latter have been saved from scrapping when the hub plate has slightly worn into the wood by application of a plywood inlay under the plate, giving a new solid seat.

Assembly of rebuilt aircraft is handled as much as possible according to factory subassembly procedure. Fuselage equipment is installed before the wings go on, engines are subassembled with starters and generators, then fastened to mounts. The Harvard wing centre section subassembly is completed with tanks and landing gear before being attached to the fuselage. Wings are assembled and controls balanced before attachment.

MAJOR ASSEMBLY

In major assembly, specialized crews were tried in handling each section of the work, but it was found that more supervision was required than if one crew were trained to carry through the whole process of one ship. With this method, greater familiarity with individual requirements and state of progress, with less conflict of group interests, has been achieved. Lists posted on each plane give crew names, man in charge, state of completion, and parts on request with dates of same, so that all delays may be checked. Keen competition between crews keeps the planes rolling out.

The services rendered to the whole Allied effort — Canadian, British and U.S.—has been creditable, and all three have been quick to acknowledge it.

Less than seven-per cent of British iron and steel is being used for domestic and civilian purposes.

The answer is no farther than Aircraft Repair, the big overhaul plant at Calder. Here's the way they figure the totals for one month's business, in terms you can readily understand:

6 automobiles in steel.
One complete house in nails.
15 trips in the family car around the world in gasoline.
200 ping pong tables with about twice as many bats in plywood.
750,000 nuts, bolts and small parts or 21,000 stores issue slips.
Electric wire and cable to do 15 houses.
Paint enough to mark a 4" strip for 400 miles along highway.
50 cows in glue.
Two and one-half tons of rags.
And many other things besides.

When the many hundreds of workers sit down to eat in the plant's first class cafeteria, this is what they consume:

70,000 half-pint bottles of milk.
4,000 loaves of bread.
10,000 pounds of meat.
400 gallons of tea.
1,000 gallons of coffee.
6,000 pies and
10 tons of fresh vegetables.

Aircraft Repair Employees Hurry to Aid War Effort

Above are a group of employees of Aircraft Repair Limited going on shift at the huge Calder plant. Starting in 1941 with a total staff of 25, the plant now has more than 2,400 employees on the payroll. It is engaged in keeping aircraft of the Empire Commonwealth Air Training Plan in flying trim, and every one of its employees echoes the plant's motto, "Keep 'Em Flying".

German Commander In Paris Believed Killed by Grenade

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(CP)—A report from the French underground reaching here last night said Gen. Von Schaumburg, the German commander of Paris, might have been killed in an attack on his automobile July 28. Two German officers riding with Von Schaumburg were killed by grenades hurled by French patriots, the report said, and while the fate of the Nazi commander was not definitely known the German press on Aug. 27 said Von Schaumburg had been relieved by General Langsfield.

Wildcat Strikes Of Coal Miners Spread in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Wildcat strikes of coal miners in the United States spread rapidly yesterday, bringing the total of idle to more than 35,800, and there were indications that a call for a strike vote among 350,000 members of railroad operating brotherhoods would be issued Saturday.

T. C. Cashen, president of the Switchmen's Union, said after a meeting of railroad men in Chicago that four of the five brotherhoods had rejected a proposed four-cents-an-hour wage increase, but that the question of a strike vote had been deferred because the Brotherhood of Trainmen was not represented. A spokesman reported leaders of the switchmen, conductors, engineers and firemen and enginemen favored a strike vote.

Although reluctant to discuss the case, Dr. Kimsey did say that "the heart condition is incompatible with life. How the child has survived this long is impossible to say."

Women Playing Major Role in Aircraft Work

Women do not change fundamentally because they are doing war work. That statement finds ample backing at Aircraft Repair Limited, Edmonton's big instance of "Women in Industry." All told there are about 850 women working the shift at the plane overhaul plant, or one woman to every two men, which is about 35 per cent of the staff if you care for further evidence.

The feminine war worker still needs the same food, housing facilities, health protection and recreational opportunities which were necessary to her in "regular" days.

"Rosie the Riveter" may very well be Rose, the former beauty operator, waitress or clerk now in command of a new skill, and therefore more publicity known as the woman behind the man behind the gun. But she's still Rose.

And that's here Aircraft Repair's personnel service steps in to help. Operated by Charles B. Hornby, ex-air line official, the department has two supervisors of women on the job at the plant, checks absenteeism, assists with transportation, housing, works with health and safety departments, provides recreation facilities, among other things . . . all because Rosie is still Rose.

KEY ROLE

Mrs. B. S. Cooke and Mrs. M. Iluess, supervisors of women, play the key role in the personnel department's services to women. They act more as friendly counsellors than as regulation enforcers. Both are popular with the female element; Mrs. Cooke being elected advisor to the A.R.L. Girls "Y" club.

Most women workers have double jobs. It is hard to be both plane maker and home maker. Off hours from the bench or machine in many cases means "on hours" over the kitchen sink or the washtub. And large numbers of women also now are new workers, not broken in to the strains and pressure of work in plant or shop. Statistics show that women are ill more frequently than men; by the very nature of their physique they are more easily tired.

INCREASE RELAXATION

As the women have been taking over an increasing share in Aircraft Repair's 100 per cent war contract provisions have been increased for their relaxation and recreation, both inside and outside the plant.

They are cautioned about their health and well-being. Even a sniffle, they are warned, is sabotage. Preventable aches and pains, they are told, are unpatriotic.

The urgency of balanced diets to keep workers healthy and production at top peak is taken care of by the plant's first class cafeteria which provides balanced and complete meals at reasonable prices.

Every day, women's war efforts open up new and exciting fields. Working shoulder to shoulder with men in plants such as Aircraft Repair women are being called upon to master the various crafts of the machine age . . . and they are mastering them quickly.

But Rosie is still Rose.

Man and Woman Form Highly Successful Team at Vital Job

Men used to scoff at the clumsiness displayed by women doing the work of men. But that day has gone with the wind. At Aircraft Repair Ltd. women are playing a mighty useful role. Hundreds of men and women work side by side. In the above picture Sam Shuttleworth, sheet metal foreman, is shown working on a metal air foil with pretty Elaine Smith. Sam says women are good workers and Elaine says men are easy to work with.

Governor-General Holds Investiture

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—(CP)—The governor-general, as knight commander of the venerable order of St. John of Jerusalem, yesterday presided at an investiture in government house and bestowed various insignia of rank on 86 Canadians honored by the order.

The ceremony was the first of its kind held in Canada. Most of those receiving honors attended in person to receive the badges of their rank.

Two women, Mrs. Alice A. Ritchie of Toronto and Mrs. Ruth A. Woodward of Victoria, were made dames of grace of the order.

D. C. Coleman, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway; W. H. Carter, president of Winnipeg Electric Co., and Hon. W. C. Woodward, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, received the rank of Knight of Grace.

Churchill Sees Daughter Help to Repulse Raiders

LONDON, Oct. 23.— (CP)— Prime Minister Churchill, who is always popping up in unusual places, paid a surprise visit to a London anti-aircraft battery last night and saw his youngest daughter, Mary, help drive off enemy raiders.

The familiar figure with a cigar clamped between his jaws, stepped into the control room as Mary, a subaltern in the auxiliary Territorial Service, repeated the order to "fire" and the guns roared, shaking the structure.

The Prime Minister, a steel helmet on his head, contrasted strangely with his daughter, standing at her post in slacks, a pullover and open-necked shirt.

Mr. Churchill was greeted by Gen. Sir Frederick Pyle, general officer commanding the anti-aircraft command, who asked: "Isn't this a rather bad area for you to be travelling through?"

"I was passing by and would have felt inhospitable had I not dropped in."

Sir Frederick said: "You had better come in and take shelter. A lot of stuff is dropping around."

"Oh but I have a good tin hat," the Prime Minister returned and patted affectionately the "tilly bowler" he was wearing low over his eyes.

"Ah yes," conceded Sir Frederick, "but you have a great deal underneath that overcoat that can suffer just as much from shrapnel."

The Prime Minister turned with a challenge: "You mean to say I am not as slim as you?"

Sir Frederick is the size of a well-conditioned jockey.

Mr. Churchill insisted on remaining beside the guns and each time they roared he exclaimed to the general, who was conscientious of the Prime Minister's welfare: "This exhilerates me. This exhilerates me."

Big Sports Program Has Developed for Workers

Many Teams Take Part in All Types Sports, Games, At Aircraft Repair Plant

Care for a small headache? The Sports Association of Aircraft Repair Limited's Recreation Council can provide you with same, no charge. They are doing about the biggest sport business in the west, and doing it well, too . . . but not without plenty of troubles.

They have the small task of providing physical activity for as many of the 2,400 aircraft workers as care to participate. When these hundreds "care to participate" at almost any hour of the day or night the problems start. Toss in overlapping shifts, cramped community facilities, and the many interests of war workers, and you will see how the matter develops.

President of the firm, W. Leigh Brintnell, himself an ardent sportsman, was quick to realize the need for organized recreation for his big staff. As the plant expanded early this year, he approached Miles Palmer, well-known in local sporting circles, to get the original sports committee working on definite plans. This move resulted in the A.R.L. Recreation Council, with its five sections, Sports, Entertainment, Fellowship-Skills, Promotion, Booster Club.

Today the Sports Association is headed by Jim Kelly, heat treating foreman, and capable Hornet ball player in city baseball areas; Bob Anderson, purchasing agent, and vice-president of the Edmonton Athletic club; Mima Templeman, accounting staff, and Ruth Moore, hydraulics stores clerk. Also on the executive are the managers of plant teams and inter-departmental leagues.

Which brings up the way the organization operates.

SOME REAL STARS

In a place the size of the Calder plane factory there's bound to be a fair sprinkling of "stars," while the rest don't care how they play as long as they play. So two types of activity are operated.

For those who want to play in city competition, and for the benefit of the many who get their recreation being spectators, plant teams are operated. That's how the Hornets ball club, piloted last season by Welding Supervisor Al Bertrand, came into being. Likewise the Men's Fastball team run by Stu Hart, sheet metal worker that got as far as the North-Central Alberta playdowns, and the Girls' Fastball aggregation that Ken McAuley, ex-instrument-shop apprentice, and Ron Oldring, another sheet metaller, kept in play.

Right now Ralph Hollingsworth brother of pressy Clare, of the local men's basketball loop) is attempting to round up talent to start Aircraft Repair, Ltd., in the hoop league Nov. 5. Girls, too, are planning entering in city competition.

And (but keep this for future reference only) the odd puckster looks with a bit more than hope towards the coming hockey season, for he anticipates an attempt at an intermediate club.

Even curling at bonspiels 'n stuff will see an A.R.L. entry if Archie McMullen, genial test pilot, can complete his "deal."

DO BEST WORK

But back to the inter-departmental competitions, where the A. R. L. organization is trying to do its best work.

It's here where big figures came in, besides big troubles.

Twenty-eight teams in a fastball circuit, about seventy entries for bowling, forty for a one-day golf tournament, about the same number for a six-hour horseshoe pitching competition. Large-sized basketball, volleyball and hockey leagues are also possible. With tennis balls now available, anything is liable to happen to next season's membership for the racquet game. Soccer was attempted this fall, too late for regular development, but will be started early next spring.

On tap for future consideration is swimming, which in the first "recreation interest" survey made last winter, topped the list. Also on the agenda is boxing, wrestling, weightlifting and track and field, among others.

Only activity to be attempted at the plant was horseshoes. Six regulation pitches were kept busy at lunch periods, before and after work. No recreation centre is available as yet.

MIXED ELEMENT

Striking thing about most inter-departmental sports is this "mixed" element. Fastball and bowling are the two most popular in this regard. The association bigwigs felt that as the men and gals work together, why can't they take part in recreation together? So far the theory has worked well.

Plant operation in most departments is on a two-shift basis with eight hours to each shift. This necessitated "duplicate" schedules with play both morning and evening. Difficulty here is fitting in office staff, always on "days."

It takes a lot of money to finance this warworker sport project. The employees help pay for it through funds provided by proceeds for regular Saturday night dances held in the plant's cafeteria, and management gives a generous grant.

These days recreation is a resource of war. It is no more a frill, a frivolity, than munitions, food or manpower. Fun, play, entertainment for workers in off-the-job hours is time gained on the job to turn out more aircraft.

That's the way the employees at Aircraft Repair look at it.

Sport Is Prominent at Aircraft Repair Ltd.

Britons Are Warned Of Possible Food Shortage in Future

By SYDNEY GRUSON

LONDON, Oct. 23—(CP)—Britain's immediate food supplies are assured but the people have been warned that next year they might have to take another notch in their belts, already pulled fairly tight from four years of rationing.

Food Minister Lord Woolton sent his parliamentary secretary, William Mabane, to Canada and the United States for a personal survey of prospects, and Mabane, reporting on the chances of obtaining increased supplies, said:

"While the spirit would remain willing the flesh was likely to become weaker. In the impact of war and in particular of the manpower draft on American domestic economy is likely to make surpluses of essential foodstuffs harder to come by."

Expert on "Smut" States Magazine Not "Dangerous"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A man who said his professional duties include attending five or six burlesque shows a week, and studying 60 to 70 magazines a month in search of published smut, said yesterday he does not consider Esquire magazine dangerous to the morals of the people of the United States.

Louis J. Croteau, of Burlington, Mass., secretary of the New England Watch and Ward Society, which, he said, is often called "the watchdog of New England's morals," told a post office department hearing board that he examines Esquire regularly.

Asked about the famed Varga girl drawings, Croteau observed, "after profound consideration of the subject, I didn't find anything bordering on the indecent or in any way lewd."

Croteau was a witness for Esquire at a hearing to determine whether its second class mailing privileges shall be revoked.

Firm Shows Tremendous Expansion During Two Years

History Aircraft Repair Plant Tells of Struggle As Organization Enlarged

History of the present Aircraft Repair Limited plant goes back two and a half years. Story of the preliminary growth and problems of the project is told in the first issue of the "Plant Bulletin" (now "Planesman"), the publication of Aircraft Repair. The July, 1942, copy gives details.

"This plant was result of a great deal of concentrated effort and an endeavor to give impetus to the purposes of the British Empire Air Training Plan.

"In April, 1941, the first 25 employees moved to No. 1 Plant, then only partially completed, and were primarily employed at that time in the assembling of Fairey Battle aircraft. This work for some time previously had been done at No. 2 Hangar of the Edmonton airport.

"Equipment and machinery for the various departments in the new plant were only arriving and necessary additions to the personnel were daily taking place.

The paper then reminds those of you who were employed here at that time know the difficulties encountered in our effort to turn out aircraft and at the same time complete installation of equipment and machinery as it arrived. Gradually departments were taking shape and began to function, not too effectively at first, but the combined effort of personnel and management soon made itself felt in the work of turning out completed jobs for the various air training schools in the west.

Chairman

J. A. McDougall, secretary-treasurer of Aircraft Repair Ltd., and chairman of the company's Fifth Victory Loan committee, who has been one of the mainstays of the organization since its formation.

"With prodigious growth in the number of people employed," the paper continues, "it was only natural that we would run into difficulties as the great majority of our new employees were unskilled in aircraft overhaul work, but due again to close cooperation between employees and management, these difficulties were gradually overcome and work proceeded at a normal rate.

Posing the question, "How many of us realize the vital importance of this work, and its relation to the success of the British Empire Air Training Plan?" the bulletin continues:

PROVIDE SCHOOLS

"In order to train pilots, air observers, navigators and other air crew, it is necessary to provide and keep the various schools supplied with airworthy aircraft. When planes, engines or parts are sent here, our job is to overhaul them as quickly as possible and get them back on the job. And this is just what we are pledged to do—To Keep 'Em Flying' by getting the aircraft out of here in first class shape without loss of time.

"We know we are being paid for the work we do, but our aim and purpose should go farther than that and we should put into our work something of ourselves, so that when the job leaves us it can be said it was a credit to the men who worked on it.

"There are few of us who do not have relatives and friends in our fighting forces. Are we going to let them down when they will need every ounce of effort we can put into this job?

"Our job, then, is to 'Keep 'Em Flying' by turning out from this plant the necessary aircraft to enable air crew to hasten the day of victory."

Supervisor

M. J. Hilton, former head of the Edmonton Technical school, who is supervising an industrial trade school of the latest type at Aircraft Repair Limited.

V.C. Holder Caught Following Escape

VANCOUVER, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt, V.C., of Vancouver and Lt. J. F. H. Wood of Vancouver escaped from a German internment camp through a tunnel and were at large for four days before being recaptured Mrs. Wood said in an interview here yesterday.

The "break" was well worth while because of better conditions in a new camp—a "special security" camp—to which they were sent after their recapture, Mrs. Wood said.

"The men are not shackled there and the rations are better," Mrs. Wood said. "My husband writes that it is quite an international camp with Poles, Belgians and Free French among the prisoners."

Col. Merritt, the first Canadian to win the V.C. in this war, was captured at Dieppe where he led the South Saskatchewan regiment. His wife and children live in Ontario.

Paper Shortage May Close Mills

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—(CP)—A. Stanley, director of the national salvage committee, said yesterday Canada's paper shortage is so acute that mills now engaged in filling orders for millions of containers needed to carry ammunition and medical supplies are faced with the prospect of having to close. Because of the gravity of the situation the committee has moved the paper salvage drive date from Nov. 17 to Nov. 3, he said.

Convict Negroes In Detroit Riots

DETROIT, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Leo Tipton and Charles Lyons, Negroes charged with rioting in the June 20-21 racial disorders, were convicted yesterday by a jury. Tipton, 35, was accused of making a false announcement over a public address system in a Negro social club that a Negro woman and her child had been killed by whites on Belle Isle the night of June 20. Lyons, 20, was charged with taking part in the Belle Isle fighting. They will be sentenced Friday. They face maximum sentences of five years in prison.

Western Airman Wins Third D.F.C.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. Robert McNair, 24-year-old leader of the R.C.A.F.-led Indian fighter squadrons, has been awarded a second bar to his Distinguished Flying Cross, which is equivalent to three D.F.C.'s, the air ministry announced last night.

Reporting the award to the North Battleford, Sask., airman, the air ministry in the citation described him as "tenacious and confident" and "an inspiration to the squadron he commands."

McNair, who has been based in Malta and Britain and was in action over Dieppe during the Canadian-led "reconnaissance in force" Aug. 19, 1942, has destroyed 16 enemy planes—the last one during a series of dogfights over occupied territory Oct. 3—and damaged many others.

Returning from escorting United States bombers which raided Germany July 28, his plane caught fire and exploded but he bailed out and was picked up by an amphibian plane while members of his squadron circled overhead.

Bulgarian Regents Confer With Hitler

By A. I. GOLDBERG

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, confronted with a Balkan problem growing graver for him every day, has called in the regents of Bulgaria for a conference with him and his highest military aides, the Berlin radio disclosed last night.

The meeting was held last Monday, the German announcement said, as both military and political developments indicated increasing difficulties for Germany. A report from Madrid yesterday said German peace overtures to Russia had been made recently in Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, and had been turned down flatly.

In Yugoslavia, meanwhile, guerrillas charged into Europe's second largest iron mine in Croatia and wrecked all the installations there, capturing the nearby city of Bosanska Dubica, the Partisan army announced. One hundred and twenty prisoners and 260 rifles and other war materials were reported taken in the city's capture.

Unrationed Beef On Hoof Cavorts In U.S. Capital

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Washington's greatest quota of unrationed beef steak in years—a herd of runaway steers—cavorted last night about government buildings, parkways, monuments and even the White House.

Fugitives from a visiting wild west show, the animals gave police a taste of life on the range until the last ration point was corralled after a four-hour impromptu rodeo.

Police radio dispatcher Charles Clay guided a force of squad cars about a lone snorting steer. The cars converged successfully on the runaway and then called upon Clay for further instructions.

The dispatcher got in touch with the rodeo's cowboys and radioed back to the waiting officers this prescription:

"Whistle to him softly-gently."

Penicillin Drug Of Great Power Isolated in U.S.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A new kind of penicillin, said to be 10 times more powerful than the original wonder drug, has been isolated in the research laboratories of St. Louis University. There's one trouble—test-tube experiments so far indicate that it won't work internally in the body.

The new bactericide is so potent that one part dissolved in 51,200,000 parts of water will kill staphylococcus aureus, the organism responsible for boils, carbuncles and other common inflammations. One part in 800,000 will inhibit completely the growth of the pneumonia diplococcus.

It has been suggested that the new penicillin chemical might be effective in superficial treatment of gangrene, one of the deadly aftermaths of war wounds.

More Than 300 Firms Contribute to Amazing Record of Canadian Shipbuilding

From Topmast to Keel, Ships Shaped on Assembly Lines From Coast to Coast

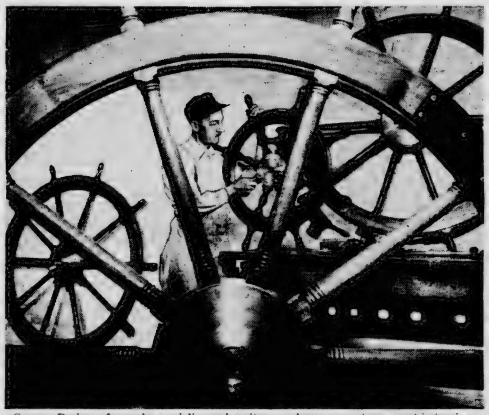

A Vancouver plant makes the anchor chains for Canadian-type Liberty ships. Each weighs 50,000 pounds, is almost a quarter of a mile long. Factory turns them out on electro-weld production line, only one of its kind in the Empire.

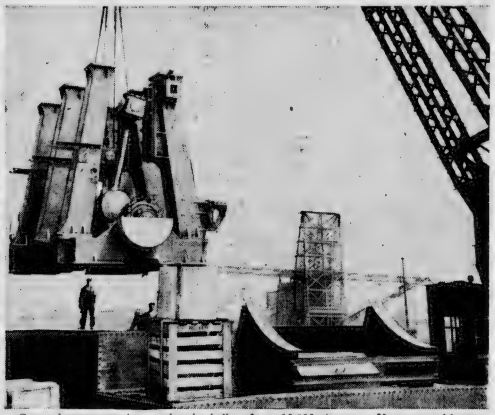

In 12 huge Canadian shipyards, some of which did not exist before the war, close to 50,000 workers are engaged in building merchant boats for the United Nations' Battle of Supplies. All but a few of these ships are of the 10,000-ton class, and more than 225 have been launched. Above, record busting United Shipyards, Montreal. These vessels are similar to U.S. Liberty ships, are 427 feet long.

Propellers for freighters are made in an Owen Sound foundry which turns out all the props for every type of craft made in Canada. Above, sanding an 18-tonner.

George Parker, formerly a violin and guitar maker, now turns out steering wheels for ships. These are made of teak or walnut, consist of 50 various wood components. Plant, also in Owen Sound, makes furniture in peacetime.

Crane lowers monster engine in belly of a 10,000 tonner. Heavy machinery manufacturing firms, in several cities, are turning out these super-engines. There are millions of parts in a ship. Procurement problems are innumerable.

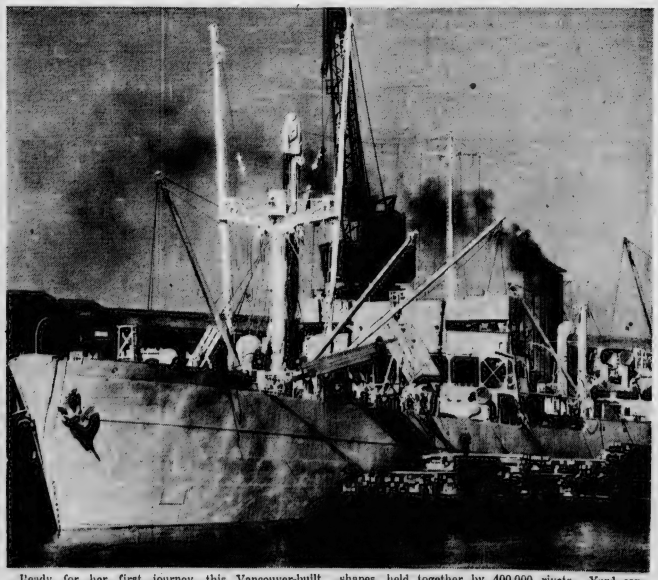

From Winnipeg, the freighters get their big anchors, two to a ship. From Ottawa come their compasses and binnacles; from Calgary, their storm valves, and from Toronto, their whistles. There are 660 types of valves in the ships, plus 25 tons of copper wire, 2½ miles of steel cables, and 110 tons of piping and tubing.

Ready for her first journey, this Vancouver-built 10,000-ton ship takes on load of Canadian lumber. In her hull alone are 3,000 tons of steel plates and shapes, held together by 400,000 rivets. Yard can claim credit for building her, but so can the many component firms contributing to her massive bulk.

EDMONTON LIVESTOCK

Weekly report from the Edmonton stockyards for week ending October 21:

Receipts	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Sheep
Today	100	18	576	23
Week	2411	677	4082	754

No undue activity on the cattle market throughout the past week, with prices 25c per cwt. lower on good killers and more on plain and in-between kinds. Receipts were heavy, but quality very ordinary, at times insufficient good to choice butchers were on offer to really test the market. Far too many plain kinds arrived for the good of the trade, as only a very limited outlet is available for this class. Producers are strongly urged to market only well finished stock as the common variety is not being sold at sacrifice prices. Good to choice steers quoted $10¼ to $10.75 per cwt. Best heifers $9.75 down. Good light cows sold from $7.25 to $7.75 per cwt. Good heavy cows $6.50 to $7.25. Bulls traded from $5 to $7.50 per cwt.

The following are the quotations:

CATTLE—

Good-choice fed calves	$10.00 to 10.50
Good-choice h'y steers	10.25 to 10.75
Fair-medium steers	8.00 to 9.25
Common to fair steers	6.25 to 8.00
Good-choice heifers	9.00 to 9.75
Fair-medium heifers	7.00 to 8.25
Common-fair heifers	5.50 to 7.00
Good-choice light cows	7.25 to 7.75
Good-choice heavy cows	6.50 to 7.25
Fair-medium cows	5.50 to 6.50
Common to fair cows	4.75 to 5.50
Canners and cutters	3.00 to 4.75
Bulls	5.00 to 7.50

Stockers and feeders of suitable quality were in fair demand. Common kinds practically unsaleable. Good light weight steers sold from $8 to $8.50 with a few short keeps at $9 per cwt. Common stockers sold from $7.50 down to a low of $6. Best heifers were from $7.50 down and stock cows $6.50 down.

Veal calves of good quality sold from $11 to $12, but heavy and common kinds were slow and hard to move, selling from $10 down to a low of $6 per cwt.

The hog market declined slightly and at the close of trading the following prices prevailed: Basic B1 and B3 grades for shipment $15.50; locals, $15.25; sows live weight on the stockyards $8.75 per cwt.; sows, dressed, $11.25 flat. Feeder hogs $10.75 to $11.

Lambs lower. Good to choice handy weights $9 to $9.50, with tops off cars $9.75; yearlings, $6 down and ewes $5 down.

AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 23—(AP)—Hogs, 10,500. Market noa established.

Cattle 700, calves 200. Top fed steers $16.95, best yearlings $16.75, light steers $16.85, heifers $16¼, killing steers $13½-$16½, cutters $7¼, canners $6-$6¾, bulls $8½-$11.

Rye Futures Show Closing Weakness

WINNIPEG, Oct. 23—(CP)—Rye futures opened strong today on the Winnipeg grain exchange in sympathy with higher price levels at Chicago but weakened in later dealings when prices fell on the southern market.

Closing values were ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher with October at $11⅜, December $1.10⅞-$1.11, and May $1.11⅞-⅜.

Trade was light in the pit and no important buying was indicated.

A small trade was reported in cash wheat with mills taking small lots of No. 2 Northern and eastern domestic interests odd cars of No. 4 Northern.

There was some enquiry for export wheat from a neutral, but no business was confirmed. Country marketings yesterday amounted to 577,000 bushels compared with 1,680,000 bushels last year.

Czechs 'Bewildered' By Status of Italy

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Jan Masaryk, vice premier of Czechoslovakia, said yesterday his countrymen "were bewildered by the acceptance of Italy as a co-belligerent, and nervous over the thought of some of the present rulers of other satellite nations becoming 'blue-eyed boys'."

Bomber Destroyed, Engines Blasted By R.C.A.F. Planes

LONDON, Oct. 23—(CP)—An air ministry communique last night said R.C.A.F. Mustangs, on offensive patrols, destroyed a Nazi bomber and damaged several locomotives yesterday while Whirlwind bombers damaged a Cherbourg peninsula viaduct. A coastal command Beaufighter, patrolling off the Netherlands coast, attacked and hit two enemy trawlers, leaving one in flames. The communique said one Typhoon and six Boston bombers were missing from offensive operations over the Low countries during the afternoon.

Strong Reaction Piles Up Against Nazism in Munich

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A Swedish traveller just completing a trip through Germany said yesterday that strong reaction is piling up against Nazism and Prussian militarism in Munich, birthplace of National Socialism, fed by a desire for post-war separation from Prussia. He pictured Munich as desiring inclusion in a Danubian federation or some other group which will separate them from Prussia.

Anti-Nazi feeling at Munich has been strengthened by "action against Catholics and the closing of convents," he added.

MONCTON, N.B., Oct. 23.—(CP)—E. A. Mr. Reilly was a member of the former Conservative government of Hon. J. B. M. Baxter.

Higher Tax Plan Rejected in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The administration plan to increase individual income taxes in the United States by $6,500,000,000 was flatly rejected by the House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee yesterday as it decided to streamline part of the tax structure without altering materially the total "take" from personal incomes.

Under the plan the present five per cent Victory tax would be abolished but the revenue would be made up in other ways, such as increasing the normal tax rate on individuals from six to 10 per cent, and disallowing the 10 per cent earned income credit.

Whereas the treasury had proposed lifting the Victory tax in such a way that the tax burden would be removed from some 9,000,000 low-income persons, the house committee voted specifically that this group must go on paying taxes, although they apparently will now be called income taxes rather than victory levies.

The resolution on merging the victory and income taxes was approved 16 to 2 and to be effective Jan. 1, 1944.

Nazis May Be Forced Back To New Line

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Military observers said today that fast-breaking Russian advances may force the Germans to begin a mass withdrawal to the Bug-Dniester line, some 300 miles west of the Dniepr, within the next two weeks.

The German armies already have been split in half for all practical purposes by Russian penetrations around the eastern end of the Pripet marshes near Gomel and signs of building offensives in the Kiev and Velikie Luki areas point to possible further division of the enemy.

GREATER THREAT

This threat of chopping the German line into dislocated masses each vulnerable to concentrated Russian attack, outweighs the apparently impending encirclement of the Germans in the Dnieper Bend in its influence on the outcome of the war in the east, informants said.

The new German line presumably would be anchored in the south at Cetatea-Alba on the Russo-Rumanian border and run northwestward to Melitopol and the Bug river to the Baltic states with the northern anchor at either Riga or Memel.

This would mean a German withdrawal to the line half-way across old Poland from which the Nazis launched their invasion of Russia in July, 1941.

The Germans are believed to have 280 divisions presently in Russia with 70 to 75 divisions (approximately 1,050,000 to 1,350,000) men in the area between the Pripet marshes and Gulf of Riga.

The forces in the southern half of the Russian front, menaced by the Soviet break-through in the Dnieper bend and the apparent impending assault around Kiev, can expect little assistance from the northern group, which has its hands full in attempting to stem the Soviet tide flooding toward the Latvian border, observers said, this embracing the prospect of a further German withdrawal.

Sailor Describes How Sub Scuttled In Corvette Battle

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—(CP)—Stoker Petty Officer R. W. (Bill) Sims, here to participate in Fifth Victory Loan ceremonies, related last night how a German submarine was scuttled during a fierce depth charges from the Canadian corvette Charlottetown brought the U-boat to the surface.

Sims said he saw German sailors lying on the deck of the submarine "all the fight taken out of them." The corvette sent a boarding party to investigate and the Germans scuttled the craft.

"One of the boarding party lads was about 22, had a wife and a little baby and he'd never seen," said Sims. "He never came back. He was Stoker Bill Brown of Toronto, my old messmate."

Sims said about a year later the Charlottetown was sunk by a torpedo which left "our stern hanging like a loose limb."

Chinese Forces Battle Against Encircling Move

CHUNGKING, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Outnumbered Chinese forces, clinging to precarious positions west of the Salween River near the Burma border, battled furiously last night against an encircling movement by Japanese forces officially estimated at 30,000.

The Japanese columns, already tripled in number since the beginning of the campaign to overthrow three weeks ago, have received further reinforcements and are also gaining in air support from bases in Indo-China, battles flared on the mountainous frontier of southwestern China, last night's high command communique said.

Youth Federation Calls For Invasion

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—(CP)—La Federation des Jeunes Travailleurs du Quebec (the labor youth federation) called today on the Federal government at the opening session of its annual convention here last night for the immediate invasion of Europe, and presented a seven-point program asking for several post-war measures, including a labor code which will "define and guarantee the rights of labor."

Kinsmen Club Will Aid Kids On Hallowe'en

Traditional "shell-out" for Edmonton youngsters on Hallowe'en night will be different this year, because all the children will be out that night working for British children across the sea.

Instead of collecting candies, peanuts, and fruit from door to door, the children will be collecting special tickets for the Milk-for-Britain fund.

The Kinsmen Club, sponsor of the fund, is selling sheets of tickets to householders through local retail stores and canvassers. These tickets are what the kids will be looking for when they shout shell-out at your door Hallowe'en night.

They will be in costumes, of course, as in former years, but they will be far too busy to get into mischief, and this wartime celebration will have a practical purpose. Objective of the campaign is two million quarts of milk for Britain.

Prizes for the greatest number of tickets collected will be awarded the children when they turn in their tickets Monday at the schools.

Edmonton citizens are being asked to spend the money they ordinarily would have bought candies with, on tickets for the fund and have them ready for the children on Hallowe'en night.

City Rooming Places Entered: Police Probing

Two city rooming places were entered and burglarized, and two other thefts of property from a city railroad station, figured in reports at city police headquarters Saturday.

Leonard Scrogie, who, with his brother, had a room in a 102 street rooming house, had his wallet containing $72 in bills, driver's license and national registration certificate stolen during the night, he reported.

Unable to obtain a key to lock the door, he just closed it, hanging his pants, which contained the wallet, near the door. When he awakened, the clothing was on the floor and the wallet missing, he stated.

MISSES WALLET

Stanley Siluch, of another rooming house near 96 street, missed his wallet, $37 in cash, a railroad ticket from Edmonton to Sexsmith, a $30 grain ticket, and his national registration certificate, when he awakened, he told police, Friday. He had locked the door of his room and left his clothes on the floor. The door was still locked when he awakened and discovered his loss.

Theft of two suitcases, property of Section Officer D. L. Pape and F/O. R. C. Keir, No. 2 "R" Depot, from the Canadian Pacific Railway depot, early Saturday morning, was told to city authorities. Both persons are women, members of the army and air force.

Before the Magistrate

Irvin Rothe, on two charges of theft to which he had pleaded guilty on Friday, was again remanded Saturday by Magistrate A. J. Millar, K.C., in city police court.

Rothe, allegedly one of three persons seen taking a suitcase from a truck outside an Edmonton hotel, early Thursday, was arrested shortly after as he beat a hurried exit along 104 street. He was carrying the suitcase when apprehended.

A second charge of theft arose after the accused allegedly took a suitcase from a truck on Sept. 16. This particular bag was addressed to a young woman at Dawson Creek, the court was told, and had contained mining papers, mitts, and a watch, among other things.

Rothe admitted that he had sold the suitcase to a second-hand dealer, but the complainant in the case was not certain that the bag was his, and it was returned to the second-hand store and later re-sold.

Adjournment was made so that the accused could assist the police in locating the goods. It was in his own interests to see that they were found, Mr. Millar told the prisoner, adding that his case would not be helped any if the things were not recovered. Adjournment was made till Tuesday next.

Baby "Glamor Girl" of Army Hospital

Patients, Staff of U.S. Hospital Pleased at Arrival First Baby

By JANE MEYER

The stork visited the United States Army Base Hospital here this week for the first time and brought along a precious blue-eyed baby daughter for Sgt. and Mrs. Eugene Warren.

The blessed event has proved one of the most welcome and most-feted occasions since the hospital opened. But Mr. Stork, as he sometimes does, advanced the date of his visit, and deposited his much-loved little bundle of humanity earlier than had been anticipated. As a result petite Janet Lynn Warren, who weighs three pounds 13 ounces, and measures 17 and one-half inches from head to toe, has been placed in an incubator at the hospital by Maj. W. T. Joyce, commanding officer and Capt. Douglas J. Watson, who ushered her into the world.

Mrs. Warren, the former Jean Antonio, 11109 91 avenue, and her husband, whose home is in Berkeley, Cal., have not been permitted to see their baby since she was born.

She has been kept in the room which nurses and doctors hastily converted into a nursery. Her bassinet is a wash basket lined with pads and sheets, and Lt. Catherine Coffey, head nurse, said: "Everyone who goes into town brings something back for the glamor girl of the hospital. She has a stuffed animal, which is almost as big as she is, and a pink wool blanket. The boys in Ward 2 are so excited about having a baby here that they took up a collection and asked Evelyn Wood of the American Red Cross to buy Mrs. Warren a box of candy." Mrs. Warren is in a private room off Ward 2, the surgical ward.

Capt. Watson has assigned three army nurses to take care of the petite young girl. The young women, who are surprised to find themselves on a maternity case in an army hospital are Lt. Violet Degrave, Greenbay, Wis.; Betty Sallee and Lt. Winifred Jones. Still another nurse, Lt. Ebba Larson of Parkers Prairie, Minn., takes care of Mrs. Warren along with her more regular patients, U.S. soldiers.

The base hospital takes care of wives and families of U.S. soldiers and civilian workers as it does those in the armed services.

Walter L. Dunkley graduate of the University of Alberta in 1939 has been awarded the degree of doctor of philosophy at the University of Wisconsin. He received his master of science degree in agriculture in 1941, winning the Philosophical society scholarship. In 1939 he won the northern Alberta branch of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists' gold medal. His father is A. A. Dunkley of Olds.

4 Junior Stock Clubs Will Go To East Contest

Four junior stock and seed clubs will represent Alberta at national judging competitions to be held in Toronto and Guelph, Ont., Nov. 22 and 23, S. H. Gamdier, supervisor of youth training and junior activities for the provincial department of agriculture, announced Saturday.

The four teams, provincial judging champions in seed, beef cattle, dairy cattle and swine classes, were chosen in competitions held at University Farm, Edmonton, Friday. Elimination contests were held in other provincial centres earlier in the week.

Vauxhall Grain Club took provincial championship in seed judging contests, with the Spedden Club in second place, and Consort third. Winning team members are Fred Hilderbrand and Cyril McAndrews, coached by S. S. Graham, district agriculturist of Lethbridge.

Winners in beef cattle judging was Innisfail Club, which repeated its win of last year. Last year, the Innisfail group also won Canadian championship in beef judging. Second in the beef competition was North Edmonton Club, and third, Cardston. Winning team members are Jean Edgar and Charles Cutler, coached by J. A. Birdsall, district agriculturist. Red Deer

Rosalind dairy cattle club took top honors in dairy judging, with Linden club second, and Abee club third. Winning team members are Dvalene Pierson and Leon Boulter, with District Agriculturist J. L. Kerns, Camrose, coach.

In swine judging, Liberty Swine Club of Conjuring Creek placed first, with Erskine team in second place. Cecile Dunbar and Maxine Worsley are members of the winning team, which was coached by T. K. Ludduff, district agriculturist, Thorsby.

This year's trip east will be eighth time the Conjuring Creek club has been represented in the Dominion finals. On three occasions, the club has held the national swine judging championship title.

THE JUDGES

Adjudicators in the judging contest finals were: Seed classes, Dr. J. H. Fryer, Dr. A. G. McKella, department of agriculture, University of Alberta, and E. C. Hallman, provincial department of agriculture.

Beef classes, Dr. J. E. Bowstead and L. Brooks, university staff, and D. H. McCallum, dairy commissioner, provincial government.

Swine classes, S. W. Sheppard, Dominion department of agriculture, and W. N. Pidruchney, district agriculturist, Vegreville.

TO GO EAST

The four winning teams will go east with all expenses paid by funds provided by the Canadian Council on Boys and Girls' Work, which has headquarters at Ottawa. It was announced earlier that competitors for Dominion honors will spend a brief time in the east, inspecting agricultural projects there, and another day in Ottawa, on the way to or from the national contest.

Mr. Gandier also announced results for regional contests held in Edmonton Thursday, as follows: Grain classes: Spedden, New Norway. Bon Accord; beef, North Edmonton, Metiskow, Sangudo; and swine, Conjuring Creek, Fernlook and Jarrow.
